Resolution adopted for fall ballot questions

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

In a special meeting held by the Antioch Community High School Dist. 117 Board of Education, a resolution was adopted for placing a question on the Nov. 7 ballot.

The first proposition is for the issuance of $55 million in school building bonds. This money would be used to improve a site for, build and equip a new high school while altering, repairing and equipping the Antioch Community High School building.

If this referendum is passed, the district will receive an entitlement grant from the Illinois State Board of Education in the amount of $11,736,698 to help finance the construction costs.

Without the state entitlement grant, costs will increase for the homeowner. The grant will only be given to the district if the 20-year school building bond issue is approved in the upcoming election.

For a homeowner with a $200,000 home, the cost per year would be $227.40 without the bond, and the entitlement grant that comes with it. The cost per year would be $176.87 with the bond and the entitlement grant for that same homeowner. The savings would be $50.53 per year.

The state entitlement, in essence, reduces the $55 million projected for the new building and improvements to the current high school to $43,263,302, and this reduction is passed on to the tax payers.

At the meeting, district superintendent Dennis Hockney said, "We've gone over the numbers very carefully, and feel comfortable with the figures."

The second proposition would increase the maximum tax rate from 1.32 percent to 1.60 percent on all the taxable property within Antioch Community High School Dist. 117 as assessed by the Department of Revenue.

The total dollar amount of the latest approved annual budget of the district is $22,185,562;

Village does not want apartment complex

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

During the first reading by village attorney Ken Clark of the proposed variations for the Cedar Development Condominiums at 639 Main St., discussions were revisited about how—or if—rentals should be handled.

Though board members had different opinions on this matter, they were all in agreement that they would not want this property to end up as an apartment building.

The plan calls for two buildings—one of five units and the other of six units. There is concern that proximity of the development to the train tracks, and the fact that all trains must sound their whistles while going through towns, will drive unit purchasers out of the development and that it will be difficult to resell these units.

Trustee Wayne Foresta said, "The thing that concerns me is that all of the units would be rented out by individual owners. In essence, it becomes a rental property."

"We are trying to guard against it becoming an apartment building," said trustee Dorothy Larson.

Foresta added, "I personally have had problems with someone parking an old, beat up Mercedes in the front yard for three years next to my house."

Mayor Marilyn Shineflug explained that the village handles problems such as those by setting up ordinances against the nuisance in question, and not by restricting the rights of homeowners to rent their properties if need be.

Clark repeatedly stressed that developers protect the value of their developments by putting restrictions in the covenants of their declarations for the condominium association to enforce. Buyers know of the restrictions at the time they contract to

Antioch's roots

By preserving a church, Lakes Region Historical Society preserves town heritage

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

The Lakes Region Historical Society (LRHS) members knew they wanted to do something special for the Village of Antioch with the money bequeathed to the society by Dolly Spiering's estate. The decision was made to buy—and therefore save—Antioch's oldest standing building, currently known as St. Ignatius Episcopal Church.

"Certainly there were older buildings in town, but they didn't survive," said LRHS member Ainsley Wonderling. "This building is important to save because of what it has meant to this town."

There is some discrepancy in the documentation about whether the building was constructed in 1862 or 1863, but it was built to be the permanent home for the Disciples of Christ.

The Village of Antioch was incorporated in 1892, but 50 years prior there were nine log houses owned by families, many of which are still prominent in the area:

Stevens, Shepard, Gage, Simons, Warner, Ingalls, Rinear, Person and Simmons.

Parochial schools credited for aiming at results, not feelings

By SANDY HARTOGH

The Catholic school system was created due to the belief that a proper education could not separate intellectual development from moral development. Catholic officials maintain that the establishment of parochial schools does not "imply the condemnation of public schools, or opposition of any kind to the purpose for which they were established," but there still remains an age-old debate between the value of a parochial education versus that of a public education.

"A Catholic school education is more consistent," noted Hainesville resident Lisa Murphy. "It may not have all the frills that a public education can offer, but it sticks to the basics and parents know what their kids are getting every year. Public schools tend to go for more trendy curriculum while the Catholic schools stick to more traditional ideas."

Although not an expert on the subject, Murphy has sat on both sides of the fence. She is a former Catholic schoolteacher who currently tutors students from Grayslake Elementary School Dist. 46. She was raised with a parochial education and believes that the standards in today's Catholic schools are as high or higher than those taught years ago.

"Private schools can afford to have higher standards because they are not obligated to take every student," Murphy pointed out. "Catholic schools are a privilege whereas public schools are a right."

Ingleside resident Ginny Sutton agreed, stating that

Attorney contends lawsuit could let village off hook

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

The past few months have felt like a ping-pong match to residents concerned about development and growth in Antioch with meetings being cancelled, rescheduled and continued—often on short notice.

When the special meeting of the combined planning and zoning board set to hear the continuation of the zoning change on 134 acres of land owned by Donald and Kevin Boylan was cancelled at 4 p.m. on the day it was scheduled to take place, the group ACRE used its time behind the Village Hall to increase support for its cause.

The name ACRE stands for Antioch Coalition to Rescue the Environment. The group's current focus is to stop the board of directors of the Village of Antioch from approving the Neumann Homes development. Attorney Newton Finn has been retained and plans to sue the village if the development is approved.

In a letter addressed to ACRE, Finn said, "You have asked for my legal opinion concerning the validity of a purported Settlement Agreement between the Village of Antioch and William and Peter Anest that underpins the proposed Neumann Homes development. While there are no guarantees in the legal process, and predictability is never a 100 percent proposition, I would be surprised if the purported settlement agreement and proposed development at issue would survive a legal challenge."

Finn later explained in an interview, "I was able to find a couple of cases that closely mirror this situation. The concern had been that the settlement order would sanitize this," referring to his contention that the municipality acted outside of its limits in settling with the Anests in 1992.

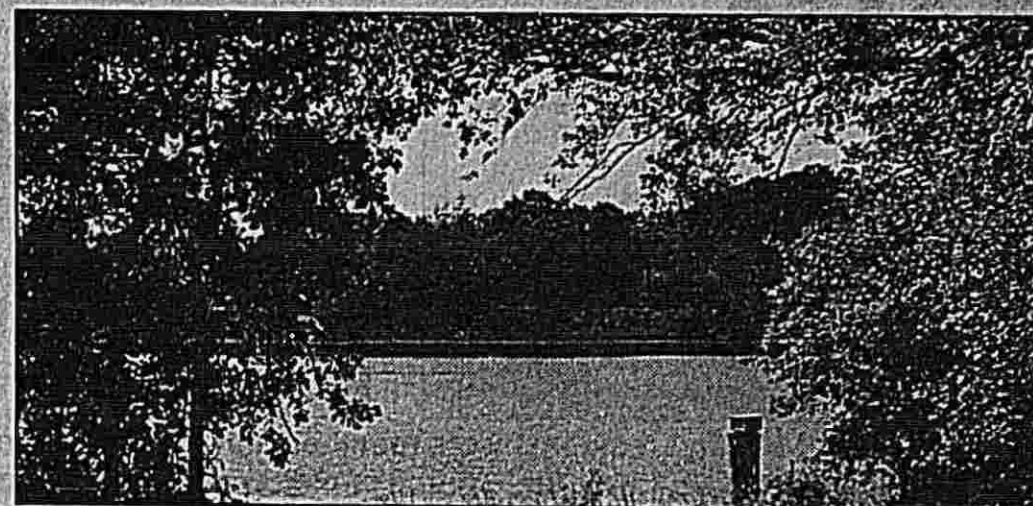

According to Finn, the Illinois "black letter" law—or a well settled legal principle that is beyond dispute—is that anyone entering into an agreement with a municipality is presumed to know the powers of that municipality. In a previous conversation, Finn said, "What the village did in negotiating with Anest was set up a PUD (planned unit development), which is a tailor-made plan for future development. There are many steps that must be followed under Antioch ordinance to do this. Antioch has exceeded its lawful powers in not following its own ordinance."

Finn states the cases of "Martin v. City of Greenville" and "Ad-Ex Inc. v. City of Chicago" to support his claim that the property owners would be unlikely to win a case if they sued the village for reneging on the purported settlement agreement.

Finn said, "Should Anest or Neumann try to sue, the village should be protected. The Village of Antioch probably has the power to renege on this deal."

For ACRE and its supporters, quality of life issues and density issues are the major concern. The group's flier seeking support asks residents to "imagine the negative and irreversible impacts this development will have on our community."

Pulte hearing continued to Sept. 14

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

The public hearing for a proposed PUD within existing R-1 zoning for Pulte Home Corp. will be continued before the combined planning and zoning board for the Village of Antioch on Sept. 14 at 7:30 p.m. at Village Hall.

The proposed plan calls for 182 detached single-family homes on the 91-acre Ellering property on the north side of Rte. 173, immediately west of Deercrest.

Concern raised at the previous hearing by planning and zoning director Bob Silhan included density—though 31 percent less than the maximum allowed—because the site is not part of the Special Service Area (SSA) for Lake County sanitary sewers.

Pulte is requesting the county and the village to consider this site for inclusion into the SSA.

Silhan was also concerned about the Illinois Department of Natural Resources (IDNR) review. He said, "A follow-up detailed report must be prepared by the petitioner to the IDNR relative to the Endangered Species Act. The public hearing process cannot conclude until after this has been submitted and the IDNR has had a chance to review and comment."

John Nelson of the IDNR said, "The nature preserve is very concerned because of the proximity to Red Wing Slough. We will be very desirable to children and the buffers to Red Wing Slough are very narrow. Water quality issues will need to be discussed as well."

Presenter for Pulte Home Corp. John Milne said, "This plan is designed to be sensitive to the environment with no wetland impact. We are preserving the existing forest on the property and protecting Red Wing Slough."

Cop charged with DUI

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

Antioch Police officer Steven M. Hayes, 27, of McHenry, was charged with an aggravated DUI for an incident that happened in May, and resulted in a one-car crash that injured the two passengers of the vehicle.

The indictment was issued Aug. 30 and a warrant issued for Hayes' arrest. Hayes surrendered himself at the Lake County jail on Aug. 31.

The May accident happened on Neville Rd. near Dowell Rd. in unincorporated Wauconda.

According to Lt. Fred Heidecke of the Lake County Sheriff's Dept., at that time Daniel R. Wasilowski, 27, of McHenry, told the officers at the scene that he had been driving the 1996 Jeep Cherokee involved in the accident. Hayes, allegedly, had been following in a vehicle behind the Jeep.

Both Heidecke and Matt Chancey of the State's Attorney Felony Review Dept. said that through interviews and further investigation, information came forward indicating that Hayes had been the driver of the vehicle and not Wasilowski.

When asked to confirm a written report stating that the Jeep's owner, Richard Anderson, 27, of McHenry had suffered a broken neck and ruptured spleen, and that 22-year-old passenger Jennifer Boyd of McHenry suffered a fractured spine, Chancey said, "That is the allegation."

Police records said that Hayes' blood alcohol concentration was .17, more than double the legal limit of .08, at the time of the accident.

According to Antioch Police Chief Charles Watkins, Hayes is on administrative leave pending further investigation. He said, "I'll be talking to the board of police and fire next week, but we'll have to wait and see what happens."

In a previously unchallenged report published in the Antioch News on July 28, Hayes was listed as the school liaison officer and lauded for his work with children.

Though Watkins now denies that Hayes is or was the school liaison officer, he still speaks highly of Hayes' record. "The incident happened when he was off duty and outside of Antioch. We've never had any problem with his work performance," said Watkins.

According to Chancey, Hayes will be arraigned on Sept. 12 before Judge John Phillips in Waukegan.

With regard to the man who initially presented himself to police as the Jeep's driver, Heidecke speculated that Wasilowski could face a possible charge of obstruction of justice, a fact confirmed by Chancey.

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

The Antioch Chamber of Commerce and Industry announced Antioch's first quilt walk being held in conjunction with the annual Fall Arts and Crafts Fair held on Sept. 9-10. The Quilter's Dream, Inc. of Antioch sponsors the quilt walk.

In addition to more than 100 displays featuring the wares of artisans and crafters from around the country, there will be a quilt walk with displays from members of several different quilt guilds.

Downtown merchants have generously donated window space along Main and Lake streets to showcase some of the areas finest quilters.

Last week we reported about Margo Schreiber, director of the Illinois Department of the aging coming to the Senior Center to explain the Circuit Breaker Program. Apparently, Tim Osmond's (R-Antioch) office had a hand in arranging Schreiber as a speaker. We apologize for that inadvertent omission.

According to "History of the Disciples in Illinois 1819-1914" by Nathaniel S. Haynes, The name Gageville was initially given to the village that was later renamed Antioch years afterward. It reads, "In this community a church after the primitive order (Disciples of Christ) was constituted Aug. 7, 1841, with 20 members, by Min. William Davenport, then of Walnut Grove. It was the first church of Christ in the northern tier of counties in the state."

According to Wonderling, the Disciples of Christ were first referred to as "Christians" in Antioch, Syria, a city on the Orontes River in southern Turkey. "That's why this town is named what it is," she said.

"Unfortunately, we don't have any records from the Disciples of Christ," said Wonderling. "Our documentation really begins when the church was bought by the Episcopal Church for $2,000 on Nov. 16, 1916." Records show Wonderling's father, William Brook, was the first baby baptized in the Episcopal Church on Nov. 19, 1916.

A picture from the book "Antioch Illinois, a Pictorial History, 1892-1992" shows the building as it looked about the turn of the century with square, clear windows, white clapboard and without the addition to the bell tower.

At the walk-through for LRHS members, president Bob Lindblad said, "We have to decide if we want to rehab or restore this building. We have to decide whether to keep the arched stain glass."

Truly restoring the building to what it had been in the late 1800s would be a complicated undertaking as it is undergone a number of changes over the years.

In 1918, the same year the church became debt-free, the bell tower and stained glass windows were added to the church. In 1919 a new, carved altar replaced what is believed to be a mere table at the front of the church. This altar was, in turn, updated to give the church a more modern look 30 years later.

Also in 1919, the exterior walls were "kell-stoned" (stuccoed), covering the clapboard.

After World War I, barracks from Ft. Sheridan were moved and added to the building as a hall.

Nonetheless, when a restoration specialist from Oakbrook looked at the building several years ago, he reportedly commented that the quality of the hand-hewn beams could not be reproduced. According to Wonderling, he also reported that the fieldstone foundation was dry, only had one crack and had never flooded.

"It's going to be a challenge and a lot of work," said Wonderling. "But a lot of residents and parishioners will be glad the building isn't going to be torn down."

As of 1990, 156 weddings, 562 baptisms, 350 funerals and 519 confirmations have been performed in the church.

"This is Dolly's legacy—to do something really nice for the entire community," said Wonderling. "She's been generous her whole life."

purchase a unit.

"I have a philosophical problem with making these restrictions," said trustee Marvin Oldenburger. "I bought my home and plan to live there, but if something should happen, I feel I have a right as a property owner to do so (rent the property)."

Larson added, "It needs to be up to the condominium association to make sure that their homeowners are protected."

Discussion ended with the acceptance of village administrator Tim Wells' suggestion to encourage the developer to place some strong restrictions on the condominium association to find out the developer's views on the matter.

"There's no point in making a big deal out of this if the developer already has appropriate language in the declarations," said Clark.

the total dollar amount if increased by the proposed additional tax would be $24,195,634.

The money from this educational fund tax rate would be used for the maintenance (including services, utilities and buses), hiring teachers and for extracurricular activities that would come about with a new high school being built.

Hockney said, "Both Libertyville and Warren Township built their schools without increases to operate them, and now they are both back on the ballot."

Board member Larry Peterson said, "Libertyville had some surprises. The way we have it set up, there should be some room."

While the $55 million in school building bonds will show up in 2001 tax bills, the educational fund tax rate of $0.28 would not be in full force until 2004 and 2005.

Hockney said the tax bill would show about half of that amount for the first year, and the remainder in the second. "The whole $0.28 will not show up all at one time."

The board unanimously approved the resolution.

Revoked driver's license

Sharon C. Kilpatrick, 42 of 651 S. Jackson in Waukegan, was arrested for driving with a revoked driver's license on Sept. 2 at 6:20 p.m. at about 840 W. Rte. 173.

Police observed a tan Lincoln locked at 54 mph in a posted 40-mph zone. Kilpatrick was stopped and her identifiers were checked through LEADS and came back with her having a revoked Illinois driver's license and a suspended Wisconsin driver's license.

She was arrested and placed through booking procedures at the Antioch Police Dept., and issued citations for speeding and driving with a revoked driver's license. She was released on bond pending her Oct. 25 court date.

DUI

Mary L. Miller, 40, of Wilmet, Wis., was arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol and for driving with a revoked driver's license on Aug. 30 at 11:26 p.m. at Main St. at Wilton.

Police observed Miller's vehicle traveling southbound on Main St. with no rear plate light and followed her further, observing her car cross over the double yellow line.

Police activated the emergency lights and attempted to stop Miller. She turned onto Wilton, running over the curb and finally stopping.

Miller told police she didn't have her license with her, but had identification. After fumbling through her wallet, she handed the officer a doctor's business card stating it was her identification.

While talking to Miller, police detected the strong odor of alcohol on her breath. She failed the "one leg stand" field sobriety test and refused to take any others.

Her identifiers were run through LEADS/NCIC coming back with her having a revoked driver's license in Wisconsin.

Miller was transported to the Antioch Police Dept. and refused to give a breath test. She was placed through booking procedures and issued citations for driving with a revoked driver's license, no rear plate light and improper lane usage.

She bonded out with $300 cash pending a Sept. 19 court date.

Teen causes 5-car pile-up

A driver who failed to stop in time during heavy traffic is alleged to have caused a five-car accident on Grand Ave. west of Munn Rd. in front of Grand Ave. and Victory Lakes in Lindenhurst on Aug. 31 at 3:40 p.m.

The driver, Crystal Hamm, 17, of 821 Riener in Antioch, was heading westbound on Grand. A car was stopped at Grand Ave. and Deep Lake Rd., due to construction. Cars stopped behind her. Hamm said the cars in front of her stopped suddenly, and she was unable to stop in time. Her collision with the last car in line pushed each car into the one in front of it.

GROWING

parents who spend the extra money for a good education "want their money's worth." As a single mom, that means many sacrifices to send her son, Andrew, to St. Bede Catholic School. The Ingleside parochial school was on the archdiocese's watch list to be closed just five years ago but has since shown increased enrollment every year.

"I think, in this country, the public schools are in a crisis stage. So are a lot of children. I'm not trying to sound 'holier than thou' or better than anyone else, but we're living in different times and more parents need to sacrifice for their kids . . . put more emphasis on them," stressed Sutton who took Andrew out of the public school system with the hopes that his sensitivity would fare better in a smaller environment. So far it has, and Sutton said she has seen a marked improvement in her son's demeanor and education.

"St. Bede's is a wholesome, wonderful atmosphere for children to be in," claimed Sutton whose two older children graduated from public schools over 15 years ago. "There is no pressure for dyed hair or earrings because it's not allowed. When my other children were in public schools, things were different. Now, the teachers' hands are tied and I found it much harder to handle my younger child because of all the freedom children have today. They don't seem to have respect for anything or anybody."

Along with the three "R's" of basic education, St. Bede's school theme for the year is "Respect, Reverence and Responsibility." Sutton said the theme is brought home as well. She stated that the public school system invests far too much time "making the children happy" in whatever they do. She claimed it will turn out to be a detriment as the children get older and are faced with the "real" world and life's disappointments.

Murphy said her overall impression of the difference between students from public and parochial schools was respect. She noted a succinct difference in the way her public school students related to her.

"They seemed to expect more of a casual relationship. It's not that they were intentionally being less respectful, they just didn't have as much etiquette ingrained in them as Catholic school students do," Murphy explained.

Murphy admitted that the public school system is farther ahead in regards to technology. Computer classes are part of the curriculum for the county's parochial schools, but funding limits the number of computers available within the schools. However, she pointed out that while technology is a good thing, she noticed the use of calculators is becoming more frequent among the younger public school students. She said the Catholic schools do not allow their students to use calculators until they are in higher grades, and even then they are only used on limited occasions. She expressed concern that mathematics basics are being skipped over in the earlier elementary years of public school students.

"What happens if they are without a calculator at some point in their life? Are they going to be able to figure out a mathematical problem on their own?" she wondered.

The schools in the Archdiocese of Chicago, including those in Lake County, are required to follow state guidelines, but they are not tied to Springfield in regard to curriculum. The bishop is the supreme educational authority assisted by a school board and a diocesan inspector of schools. The church pastor is responsible for the school building, staff salaries and anything else that requires immediate authority. The church community usually appoints the school principal.

Grayslake resident Laura Olmsted, whose son just started kindergarten in the public school system, sees this as a definite plus in terms of stability for parochial schools.

"The Catholic schools are bound by one set of politics. In the public school system, there are multiple political bodies always in fluctuation," said Olmsted. "There are no standards and things change every year. It's hard for us as parents to know what to expect from the administrators and politicians who levy the funding for our schools."

The Illinois Board of Education has been busy rectifying the situation by implementing the Illinois Learning Standards that was initiated in 1995. The purpose of the project is to maintain the same high standards for all public school students regardless of where they reside.

While parochial schools focus on a strong basic background within their curriculum, there is also room for art and music regardless of the extra funding needed for teachers. Unlike the public schools that target these subjects for temporary elimination if funding is low, Catholic schools strive to maintain them as a very important part of the education process.

"We don't think of these subjects as fluff," said Marcie

Bosnak, principal of St. Patrick Catholic School in Wadsworth. "We consider classes such as Career Awareness to be fluff. We offer solid instructional programs, based on research, to address the needs of our children while giving them strong basics."

Those basics appear to have paid off for the majority of students in the Archdiocese of Chicago Catholic elementary schools. They consistently scored above national averages in standardized, comprehensive and multi-assessment achievement tests that were administered last March by schools nationwide. Third, fifth and seventh-grade parochial students who took the Terra Nova test scored above the 50th percentile. This figure represents the national norm for the test that is used in 21 states. The seventh-grade students scored 26 percent above the national norm in reading, 25 percent above in language arts and 17 percent above in math. The fifth and third grade students were not far behind with their test scores.

The Terra Nova was chosen by the Archdiocese because of its focus on national education standards. The Illinois Standards Achievement Tests (ISATS) administered to Lake County public school students are based on the Illinois Learning Standards. Many states administer their own standardized tests, and while parents are informed if their children are meeting or exceeding state standards with test scores, they may not be aware that many state standards are frequently below national norms.

Dr. Jerry VanTelt, Director of Educational Services for the Lake County Regional Office of Education said he found that argument to be just the opposite.

"I have found that students who have been administered standardized tests as well as the ISATS are above norm on the national testing but do not meet the criteria of the Illinois Learning Standards," said VanTelt.

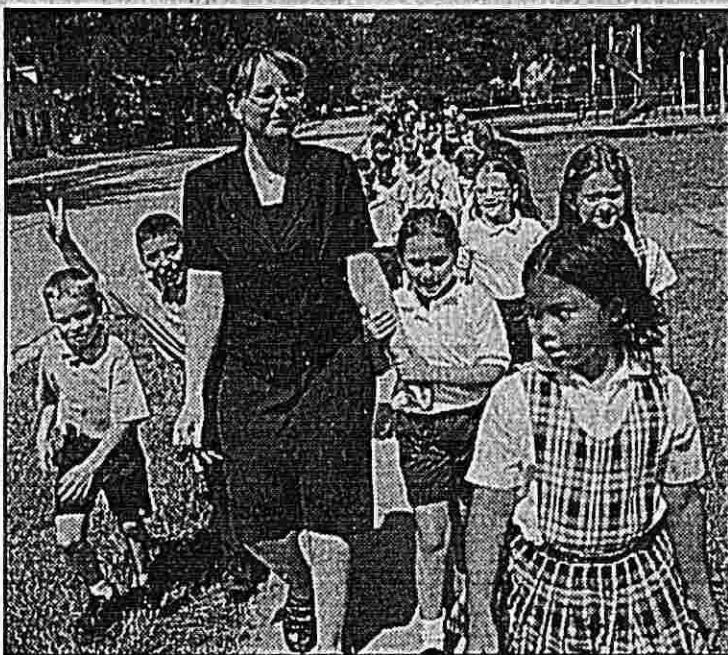

He said the difference between a test such as Terra Nova and the ISATS is that the national standardized test is based upon averages that were established several years ago whereas the achievement test is based upon absolute criteria. As a result, the students who are administered the ISATS are not being measured against other kids - they are being assessed at how well they achieve expected levels of standards that involve tough criteria.

"That is why so many school districts are complaining because their scores are lower than those achieved on the IGAPS (Illinois Goal Assessment Program that was superseded by the ISATS)," explained VanTelt.

There is much controversy over the idea of national standards and tests for public school children. In the forefront is the argument that such tests might ultimately hurt minority and lower-income children.

"In parochial schools, if a child doesn't make it they don't go to the next grade," said Sutton, who has been running a daycare program for 15 years. "A lot of my daycare parents complain that the public schools seem to push the kids along whether they get it or not. I am a struggling single parent, but that is no excuse for my child not to exceed."

"It would certainly be a lot easier financially for me to send my son to a public school, but he is the most valuable thing I have . . . he's my biggest investment," she concluded.

Historical society to present music, lore of bagpipe

The Lakes Region Historical Society (LRHS) is hosting a bagpipe musical presentation by piper John Michael Hughes of St. Paul, Minn. on Sept. 24 at 5 p.m.

According to historical society spokesman Earl Beese, many of Antioch's earliest settlers came from New England and were of Scottish background. This performance is in honor of that Scottish heritage, and is being presented in hopes of keeping it alive.

Beese said, "My wife heard his presentation last year and thought he was really good. He tours around an area and was available for Sept. 24 so we scheduled him."

During the one-hour presentation, Hughes will give some information about the bagpipe and its history as well as playing some familiar songs such as "Danny Boy."

The performance is currently scheduled Wesley Hall at the Methodist Church on Main St. just north of Orchard St., though there is a possibility that the performance could be moved to the new bandshell (in part, weather providing). The performance is free of charge, courtesy of LRHS.

LRHS is a nonprofit organization that operates the Lakes Region Historical Society Museum. The museum is open from 11 a.m.-3 p.m. on Saturdays, or by appointment. Call 395-7337 to make arrangements.

New memberships are welcomed by the society, and annually cost $1 for students, $3 for individuals, $5 for families, $25 for companies. Lifetime enrollment is available for $100.

There is room available for volunteers on the following committees: membership, building restoration, house and social, program, press and publicity, acquisitions, and newsletter. Call the above listed phone number, or write to LRHS at P.O. Box 240 in Antioch for more information about becoming a member.

For questions about the bagpipe presentation, please call Beese at 395-1685.

Book covering, a dreaded chore

After the long summer break, there always seem to be things we remember from school year to school year, and then there are things that we tend to forget. It only took one look at our girls staggering out from the school building after their first day back, loaded down with every text book ever published, for me to remember the dreaded "book covering" procedure that was about to confront me. Ours is a school that requires all the text books be covered to protect their surfaces.

In years past, striving for Mom of the Year, I researched the subject thoroughly and even came up with a pattern to sew denim book covers for all the books. This year it took seeing the waddling girls to jolt my memory of the dreaded chore. Perhaps it was too much sun over the long lazy days of summer, or just plain denial on my part, in any event, I was totally unprepared for the feat at hand. I was now faced with the monumental task of finding clever, creative book jackets, by 8 a.m. the following morning.

The school hand book stated brown paper grocery bags worked well, and it also urged you not to use tape as this only render more damage upon removal. So here I was, faced with covering nine books, with nothing more than a brown paper bag. Bet this dilemma didn't appear in any edition of "Survivor," but boy it sure seems to fit the bill.

Accepting my mission like a mom, I spent an entire hour centering, cutting and folding the first book cover. After totally amazing myself with the final product of my labors, which closely resembled an origami sculpture, I called in our eldest daughter to show off my piece of art. All it took was one look on her face for me to realize she did not share in my enthusiasm for the job at hand.

She picked up the book, with its perfectly centered green Piggly Wiggly pig on the cover, and screeched, "I can't take that to school." It was the first time in my life I realized her rendition of cute was on a whole different level than mine. With the wind let out of my sails, I dishearteningly returned to the drawing board. Long after the girls had been tucked into bed, I settled for plain brown covers, but was appalled at the blandness of the whole group of text books. Surely no decent mother would send her children off to school with such drab jackets.

After pondering the predicament for a few minutes, I decided to jazz up the jackets a wee bit by sponge painting each cover with the title of the book and appropriate characters such as dinosaurs, parts of speech and mathematical equations. Relaying my escapades the next day to some of the experienced school faculty members, my story was met with shrills of laughter and gales of giggles. It seems I was the only mom in Lake County who stayed up until the wee hours of the morning sponging, painting book covers. I was informed that moms cover the books with brown paper bags, and kids decorate them however they see fit with their washable markers and crayons. Boy did I feel stupid, and after some serious consideration I have decided that come next school year I will be storing up those old brown shopping bags.

And so goes another "Jingle from Pringle."

Readers with information for "Jingle from Pringle" should call Lynn Pringle at 395-6364.

John Phelps

Trust me, he knows

As we speak, he's probably up there teaching St. Peter one of life's many valuable lessons. One thing's for sure—many friends and colleagues around Antioch and Lake County were sure to have had the pleasure at least once over the last 30-plus years of meeting Roy Nelson.

Daughter Candy, son Rick and wife Dorothy definitely know he would have been excited and extremely proud.

That's because once in a great while, an icon passes through and longtime Antioch resident and Antioch High School teacher and coach Roy Nelson was just that.

So many fond memories were relived Sept. 2 when the North Suburban School honored Nelson and family as part of Roy Nelson Day. ACHS inducted him into the school's athletic Hall of Fame as the ceremonies served as a prelude to the Sequoits home football opener against Fenton.

And speaking of football, one man who knew Roy better than most is longtime friend and coaching colleague, Steve Wapon.

"There was not a finer person I've ever had the pleasure of working for," said longtime friend and coaching colleague Steve Wapon. Ironically, it was a year ago to the day that Wapon, who retired after better than 30 years at ACHS, was also inducted into the school's Hall.

Ironically, Wapon was also inducted into the Sequoit Hall of Fame almost a year ago to the day. Wapon had served over 30 years at the North Suburban school and still remains as the varsity girls golf coach.

"He (Roy) had a vision beyond getting the victories," continued Wapon. "He was all about helping teach lessons in life."

Roy Nelson had been the varsity football coach in 1968-69. "That's when he brought me in to coach the freshman team," reflected Wapon. "He gave me a chance and taught me so much about camaraderie and sportsmanship."

And speaking of 1968, Nelson, who had also coached varsity golf, claimed the Northwest Suburban title in football that year. He would add another NWSC title two years later.

For more than 40 years, Nelson had taught drafting, physical education and driver education Department Chairman. Twenty-nine of those glorious years came while at ACHS.

Prior to teaching and coaching, Roy earned a rank of Master-at-Arms while serving in the Navy during World War II.

Before his stint in the service, Roy was quite an accomplished boxer, winning two Golden Gloves to accompany one Fourth Fleet Championship.

"He was one of the great ones we had here and he will be missed immensely," said Wapon.

In honor of Roy's passing, the varsity football team, will be wearing the initials RN on their helmets this season.

Chances are, though, that's not the only place one will look to in remembering one of the school's great educators.

Sequoits thump Fenton on Roy Nelson Day

By JOHN PHELPS
Sports Editor

Roy Nelson must have been looking down on the Antioch varsity football team Sept. 2. And the Sequoits must have known it.

"He was a great guy to work under," said friend and former coaching colleague Steve Wapon. "He taught everyone a few lessons about life."

Wapon was brought in by Nelson to coach the freshman football team at the start of the 1968 season.

And a little over 30 years later, the Sequoits (1-1) turned its best performance of the young season, a 27-7 drubbing over non-conference Fenton.

"We're still pretty young and have only two starting seniors," said running back Mark Purnell. "When we shut them down twice inside the 20 and that really got our confidence going. The defense played very solid this afternoon."

Purnell scampered for 77 yards on 17 carries and two touchdowns, the first a 1-yard plunge after a Fenton fumble with 1:58 left in the opening quarter. On third-and-eight, Josh Bouchard forced the ball carrier to fumble and Rob Lodesky recovered to set up the score.

As part of a stingy Sequoit defense, Chris Wojtkiewicz later picked off a pass and Pat Swanson and Scott Hodina recorded quarterback sacks.

Back on offense, the speedy wide receiver Eric White, who had been hampered the past week by a deep thigh bruise, caught a 42-yard strike from brother and senior signal-caller, Brandon, with just over seven minutes left in the half.

"It feels a little better," said White from the sidelines after his score. White finished with 67 yards on three receptions.

Brandon White again showed poise and scrambling abilities in completing 9-of-14 passes for 130 yards and a touchdown.

"He's coming along very nicely for us," said Head Coach Del Pechauer. "Overall, we need to cut down on penalties but today, we did a lot of nice things out there."

If White wasn't throwing or Purnell dashing, fullback, junior fullback Dan Miodonski was running over people.

The 6-foot-3, 210-pounder ran for 75 on 13 carries and scored the Sequoits third touchdown, an 11-yarder with just over 10 minutes remaining in regulation.

Backup senior offensive end and running back J.T. Litchfield produced Antioch's final tally, a 9-yard run with 4:12 remaining.

Next up for Pechauer and the Sequoits will be a North Suburban crossover game with Zion-Benton at home Sept. 9 at 1 p.m. Last season, the Sequoits came out on top in a 27-20 shootout.

Ironman Logsdon didn't rust in first triathlon

By ROB BACKUS
Staff Reporter

Forty-three-year-old Lake Villa resident Phil Logsdon just completed his first running of the Ironman Triathlon on July 30 in Lake Placid, NY.

The Ironman Triathlon consists of a 2.4 mile swim, a 112 mile bike ride and a 26 mile run (the equivalent of a marathon) all run right in a row.

The Ironman Triathlon was started in the early 1980s in Kona, HI, which is where the championship is run every October. The Lake Placid run was just one of the trials where contestants attempt to qualify for HI.

Logsdon finished 1,231st in a race where 1,544 people started and 1,438 people finished. He completed the swimming event in one hour, 23 minutes, 52 seconds, the bike in seven hours, 37 seconds and the run in five hours, 54 minutes, 25 seconds, for a time of 14 hours, 36 minutes, 19 seconds.

The easiest part of the triathlon was the swim which really surprised him while the difficult part was beginning the run after the seven hour bike ride.

"After being in the saddle for seven hours, it's hard to get your legs underneath you for the run," said Logsdon. "When it was over I felt exhausted but accomplished."

Logsdon's support for the race was girlfriend Laurie Van Ryswyk. "You really need support for something like this," said Logsdon. "It helps tremendously."

"I was very excited he did it," said Van

Ryswyk. "The fact that he made it across the finish line was a big thrill."

Logsdon began to train for the triathlon in September 1999 after Van Ryswyk signed him up on the Internet.

"It's been one of his lifelong dreams," said Van Ryswyk. "I told him to go for it."

To train, Logsdon did a lot of riding. He rides to work from the train each day, which is five miles each way. He also rides a lot on weekends including some 100-mile rides.

Logsdon did a lot of open water swimming until winter, then he swam indoors at the Lake Villa YMCA. He also runs everyday and gets his long runs in on the weekends. He ran 13 miles on August 26 in Palo, IA.

Logsdon is also on a strict diet. He eats a lot of protein and abstains from alcohol and carbonated beverages. He drinks a lot of Met/Rx shakes which is an entire meal in a shake that contains all major vitamins and a lot of protein.

"About a week before the competition I began to carb up," said Logsdon. "I ate a lot of carbohydrates to give me energy for the competition."

Logsdon plans to do it again next year, in fact, "right after I got home, I sent in next year's application. I must be crazy," joked Logsdon.

It will be run the same time next year, again in Lake Placid, NY. "My goal is to cut at least two hours off my time," said Logsdon. "Which should be enough to qualify me for the championships in Kona, HI."

Logsdon has already started his regimen for next year, and he will bike more miles and make longer runs to cut down his time. "I'd like to do this every year, if I stay healthy," said Logsdon. "I'd like to cut down my time and qualify for Kona."

Tourney season forthcoming for Lady Sequoit golfers

By JOHN PHELPS
Sports Editor

Some of the premier and elite girls varsity golf teams will all congregate for the annual Waukegan Tournament Sept. 9 beginning at 11 a.m.

And the Antioch Sequoits will be eager to show off its talents to teams like Rockford Boylan, Waukegan, Glenbrook South, Homewood-Flossmoor, New Trier and Waukegan, just to name a few.

"It's truly the fun part of the season," said Head Coach Steve Wapon. "This (the Waukegan tourney) is pretty brutal. You have so many great teams there. But it's a tremendous experience for the girls to play against some of the top schools in the state."

Wapon and the Sequoits have struggled to an 0-5 dual meet record. But rest assured, the goal, that of breaking the four-golfer nine-hole score of 200, isn't far off.

"We're going to throw a big party when we break that 200 mark," added Wapon. "But seriously, that's been our goal since day one and I really feel good about the chances. Once we do that, we just want to build on it and keep moving forward."

Antioch came pretty close Aug. 30 when it hosted Stevenson at Spring Valley GC in Salem, Wis. The Sequoits, despite falling 200-216, got consistent scoring, led by sophomore Danielle Nielsen (44), freshman Katie Malcolm (52), junior Whitney Sehmer (60) and freshman Katie Lincoln (60).

Other varsity scores against Stevenson had senior Linsey Ketterling (65) and junior Erica Hedlund (67).

Overall to this point in the young season, Nielsen holds the low nine-hole average with a 43. Right behind includes Sehmer (52 avg.), Malcolm (54), Ketterling (57), Lincoln (57) and Hedlund (59).

Meanwhile, the junior varsity Sequoits also enter the tournament season. The JV squad hosts a triangular meet Sept. 13 at Raymond Heights in Caledonia, Wis. First tee-times are scheduled for 3:30 p.m. Teams competing include Racine Horlick, Waukegan and Westosha Central.

Three days later (Sept. 16), the varsity Sequoits host the Antioch Invitational at Hunter CC in Richmond.

"This is always the fun part of the season," said Wapon. "I'm very excited about this team. They're young but they practice and work hard and have fun."

The features highlighted Dave's Muffler and Brake Shop/Jensen Towing, both of Kenosha, Night.

"We've had a rough season," said Hepfner following the sprint main. "We lost some races we should've won. I can feel for Dave (Moulis) because I've been there. Hopefully, we can get another couple before the season's over."

John Tierney, after winning the 'B' main, jumped out front in the sprint feature. A caution at the conclusion of the opening circuit for a spin put the dicing field in single file for the restart. Three laps later, with Tierney and Moulis battling wing to wing for the point, a red flag flew when Fred Michaels barrel rolled down the backstretch. Michaels was unhurt.

During the red, Tierney remarked over the track public address system, "The car feels great. I know Dave is coming, and I hope we've got enough for him."

Moulis had a similar view, saying, "John is really tough. He's running strong. We had a lot of fun last week (in the 'C' and 'B' main when they finished one-two in each event, with Tierney taking the C and Moulis the B). We're going to give it everything we've got."

Two laps following the restart, Moulis shot to the inside out of turn four to overtake the point. Taking off like a rocket, the current Star Trac point leader appeared headed for a sure victory as Moulis began picking off back markers, lapping up to 11th place by lap 15. Moulis aggressiveness bit him, as he came up on a lapped car in turn four and was forced to hit the binders. When Moulis did, he spun, bringing out the yellow. Just prior to the caution, Hepfner had overtaken Tierney for what was second at the time, with the pair over a straightaway back from Moulis. Tierney ended up pulled high in turn four with mechanical problems toward the finish, ending up placing 18th.

A final yellow flew with five laps to go, with Hepfner able to keep a several car length lead enroute to the win. Tim Ammon held off a fast finishing Dennis Spitz, who started ninth, for runnerup. Chip Bell, who earlier posted his first ever fast time as he clicked off a :14.380 seconds lap to lead the 42-car field, finished fourth. Tim Cox was fifth as second through fifth came across less than three car lengths apart. Moulis ended up placing 18th in the field, dropping out with a tire going down a couple of laps following his spin. Moulis' finish, coupled with D. Spitz', finds the two separated by 9 points, 404-395, with two point nights remaining on the schedule.

Tony Engels captured the sprint 'C' main which was red/checkered flagged on the final circuit as Joe Pilman and Adam Schroeder came together while battling for the final transfer slot. Neither driver was injured after Schroeder's car flipped end over end with Pilman's flipping on its side. Dave Boyd ended up being scored second. Heat wins went to Joe Kristan on a thrilling last lap, last turn victory, Todd Lehr, Don Durham and Cox. "The greatest racer is the guy having the most fun, and right now, I'm having a lot of fun," said a beaming Tibbitts, repeating what he has painted on the rear end of his IMCA Modified. "It was a great race. Dave (Holden) was tough to get around, and I knew Scott (Shultis) was coming on at the end."

The veteran Tibbitts, with over 30 years of racing experience, was able to keep the second year driver Shultis behind as the two crossed the checkered less than a car length apart. Shultis, Holden, Mike Sandholm and Scott Kuxhouse rounded out the top five.

Ed Devall, IMCA Modified point leader, slowed just prior to the halfway point of the main, retiring to the pits with mechanical problems resulting in a 16th place finish in the 18-car field. Paired with Rob Olson's seventh place finish, Devall holds a 8-point lead, 339-331, heading into the IMCA Modified final night on Sept. 16. IMCA Modified heats went to Tibbitts, Holden, Jason Hyerdall and Sandholm. Warren Meyer won the 'B' main.

"I'm back again," said Roy, following his second IMCA Hobby Stock win of the night having won the heat race as well. "I don't know what happened to Dave (Grenlund) in the second turn. I don't think we made any contact, but the track was a little rough up high and I think we both got into the cushion. Dave must have broke something."

Roy held the lead flag to flag with Billy Combs second. Grenlund, the IMCA Hobby Stock point leader and Wisconsin series point leader as well, ended up third, dropping out after the opening lap.

Bob's Hobby Shop of Lindenhurst joined Wilmot Speedway in presenting the traditional Model Car Contest. John Sojer of Waukegan had his entry judged first in the junior division and overall. Jimmy Sivia, also from Waukegan, placed second in the juniors with Chris Dolence from Waukegan earning third place honors. In the senior division, for 'older' entrants, Larry Breeze of Twin Lakes was first, Randall Weigal of Carpentersville, Ill. second and Bill Sebenik of Round Lake, Ill. third.

Wilmot Speedway hosts its traditional 'Just Say No' Night on Saturday, Sept. 9. The all sprint car program features the Star Trac 410 Outlaw Winged Sprints and the final appearance of the 2000 season at Wilmot for the Wisconsin Mini-Sprint Association (WIMSA) Mini-Sprints.

In addition to the on-track action slated for the one-third mile clay oval, a full program of pre-race activities geared around encouraging not only young people, but all people, to have a positive lifestyle. A drivers autograph session is scheduled in the grandstand picnic area at 7 p.m. for all sprint and mini-sprint drivers. Any IMCA Modified or Hobby Stock drivers not competing at the Nationals are welcome to take part as well. Various community and social organizations are expected to be on hand including representatives expected to be on hand are the newly formed 'Kids & Racers for Victory' program based at the Lake County In Touch Office located in the College of Lake County, a partnership of CLC, the Lake County Health Department & Community Health Center and Northern Illinois Council on Alcoholism and Substance Abuse (NICASA).

The traditional Night of Championships is scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 16 with the 2000 Wilmot Speedway champions to be crowned in the Star Trac Sprints, IMCA modifieds and Herb's IMCA hobby stocks.

The 2000 season will close out with a bang as the 1st annual Night of Destruction is planned on Saturday, Sept. 23 featuring a small car demolition derby, big car demolition derby, two-person demolition derby, roll over contest, team demolition derby, school bus jumping plus a huge fireworks show.

For more information, contact the speedway's 24-hour racelines 262-862-2446 or 847-838-RACE or the track web site www.wilmot-speedway.com.

finance her $68,000 mortgage and they tied her up for $92,000!" he said.

Tom James of the Illinois State's Attorney Office stated that First Alliance had a very elaborate scheme in that the consumers were taught how to "misread" the disclosures they were signing. He said rough calculations estimate that the lending company bilked homeowners out of one quarter of a billion dollars by reeling in loan origination fees that were upwards of 20 percent. Quite a bit of the company's financial backing came from the Wall Street firm of the Lehman Brothers.

The Attorney's Office is also suing First Alliance to get restitution for all or part of the loan origination fees as well as the difference between the "teaser" rates offered to consumers and the actual interest rates they were locked into. However, James said it was "hard to say" how long the legal process would take. He also noted that is yet undetermined if the California Bankruptcy Court is going to honor the claims pouring in from all over the country.

In the meantime, the Kurths and Williams are being bombarded with telemarketing calls from mortgage companies claiming they have been appointed successor to First Alliance's loans. Roger Kurth said the last mortgage company representative to call him actually "threatened" him.

"They told me I didn't have a choice in sending our payments to them. They said they were told to take over First Alliance loans through a court order," said Kurth. "I told that lady that she would have to come to my house with a double-gauge shotgun if she wanted to threaten me!"

Williams almost fell prey to the "successor" tactics before Kurth warned him to pay no attention to the phone calls.

According to James, federal statute requires mortgage lenders to send written notice to consumers when given a court-ordered assignment to take over another company's loans.

"Do not deal with mortgage companies who call you on the telephone," James warned. "They are not legitimate assigned servicers."

Roger Kurth is enraged by the way that state and federal officials are handling the situation.

He and his mother have been on a wild goose chase since May, trying to get correct information as to where to send their paperwork in order to be part of the lawsuit. Their first lawyer gave up after paperwork was returned by the post office as undeliverable, and phone calls to state agencies such as the State's Attorney's Office were not returned.

"This is ridiculous," commented Kurth. "Look how much they got on President Clinton for such a silly thing, yet they are allowing these mortgage companies to steal our money and take our homes and we're left holding the bag. This is not right, there needs to be more regulation."

"I cannot allow my mother to be thrown out in the street because of crooks, even if they are backed by the Lehman Brothers!" he continued.

State Rep. Timothy Osmond (R-Antioch) was unavailable for comment in regard to what state officials are doing to help relieve the burden suffered by those who are preyed upon by mortgage lenders like First Alliance. Senator Adeline Geo-Karis (R-Zion) stated, in an earlier Lakeland Newspapers article she was highly aware of the problem and was planning to bring it before state legislators once sessions resumed after summer break.

"We're not selling to anyone else," stressed Charlotte Kurth. "We're staying and we're fighting back."

Residents who were affected by the First Alliance scam can file a consumer complaint form with the Attorney General's Consumer Fraud Division at 100 W. Randolph, Chicago, Ill. 60601. To request a form, call 1-800-386-5438.

Host families needed for 140 Up with People international students

Host families are needed for 140 Up with People international students who will be arriving in Round Lake Heights, on Sept. 10. Up with People students from around the world will be performing their latest musical production, "A Common Beat" on Sept. 12 at 7:30 p.m. at Round Lake Senior High School, for the general public. Sponsoring the internationally-acclaimed production is Lakeland Community Bank, and Round Lake Area Park District, and Lakeland Media.

Host families can volunteer to take one or more students into their homes for five days and four nights. Those families will be asked to provide Up with People students with sleeping accommodations; morning and evening transportation to and from drop-off points in their area; and breakfast, dinner and some lunches. As a thank you, each host family will receive two complimentary tickets to the performance of "A Common Beat."

"When you become a host family for an Up with People student, you bring the world into your home," said Pat Weber, a current host family for one of the advance team. "These students bring their life and enthusiasm, culture and stories into our home. The requirements are minimal for hosting, but the rewards are incredible."

It's not too late to buy farm rights

Those verdant green fields on the edge of town of velvety green soybeans and sturdy, skyward reaching corn stalks provide a picture of country and farming. Sadly, that picture is a false impression.

In Lake County today, a majority of the land in agriculture is owned by land speculators, investors or kept in "inventory" by developers for future home sites or commercial ventures. In all likelihood, the land is cultivated by a handful of custom farmers, operators who sow and harvest in chunks of hundreds of acres. The family farm in Lake County has all but disappeared. There is only a handful of family farms. Farm by owner occupants is pretty much history.

This reality moved county Building, Zoning and Planning Director Phil Rovang to comment that it's probably too late to implement a plan for the county purchase of development rights. The concept provides for the preservation of open space by compensating the farmer for the value he would lose by not selling the land to developers.

Rovang knows well how development rights works. He perfected the concept at his former job in Carroll County, Md. In Carroll County, rights purchases are funded with revenues from real estate transfer taxes. Landowners agree to continue farming for 20 years. Rovang said the purchase program has slowed growth and maintained farming as an industry in suburban Baltimore.

The county director hasn't given up on the program which is under consideration by the Lake County Board. There is a question of whether implementing the purchase of land rights will be worth the effort because it only works with families committed to agriculture, not shell farmers.

If the purchase program can't or won't be implemented to preserve farm land, the county has become quite adept at buying farm land for preserves. Typically, though, the public lands acquired by the forest preserve district have been taken out of production and utilized for recreation, prairie restoration or conservation.

That's open space, but it isn't a farm.

The farm purchase plan could be modified to the extent that county could buy the land and share crop or rent to custom farmers. Paying farmers to farm makes sense. Taxpayers paying the county to farm is another thing, but it could work as a creative open space initiative if voters are serious about saving our fast dwindling supply of open space. It's worth thinking about.

Handout requests bedevil townships

Township government is a lot more organized and formal when doling out general assistance than dealing with local organizations looking for a handout for various and sundry causes.

It's the constant stream of requests for cash gifts that leave township officials in a quandry. They have statutory guidelines for dealing with the needy, but they're not elected to be a conduit for donations. Yet the same people and groups that come to them for donations are often their supporters. What do they do? They pony up, of course.

Township supervisors grit their teeth and provide for handouts under an innocuous budget item and then give out the cash on a case by case basis. Not so in Libertyville Township. Often outspoken and more than willing to go against the grain, Supervisor FT. "Mike" Graham vows to be more business-like this year by instituting a budget process. Requesters have to make their case. Libertyville Township has budgeted $70,000 for what Graham describes as social services. All well and good. Only problem is that requests total $231,000.

Graham has gone public with his suggestions for township grants. In making up his list, Graham acknowledges that the township often is taken as a patsy. He wonders whether the township is being used. Graham fully admits that the "get in line for a share" syndrome is a knotty problem when some programs will get township support and some won't.

The problem is that township government is not supposed to be giving away money, even penny ante stuff like $150 for a local beauty pageant or a handout to buy refreshments for a children's sports banquet. Citizens don't pay taxes so elected officials can make handouts. They can donate on their own.

Kirk charging in varied 10th Dist.

Mark Kirk's organization and his experience in congressional campaigning are beginning to change the shape of the race to fill the seat of retiring Congressman John Porter whose next stop in politics could be a presidential cabinet post if Republicans take the White House Nov. 7.

In a short span recently, the hard-charging Kirk was "all over" the 10th Dist. which runs along the Lake Michigan shore in Lake County and divided between Lake and Cook county with an arm extending westward to the populous Arlington Heights area.

Public appearances for the engaging young aviator in the Navy Reserve included the North Chicago Navy Day parade, a debate with his opponent before senior citizens in Deerfield and shaking hands at the Arlington Heights Metra station where 4,000 persons board Chicago-bound trains every morning.

The hand-shaking appearance left Kirk, who is facing State Rep. Lauren Beth Gash of Highland Park in the general election, in a confident mood. He had 12 volunteers with him on the train platform, carrying signs and passing out literature. "We didn't hear a single negative word. It was great. That didn't happen in the primary," commented Kirk, a veteran to the ways of Washington where he once served as an aide to Porter.

Over lunch at Mickey Finn's of soup and a pot pie, Kirk spoke confidently. "We're approaching the campaign on a one day at a time basis. I believe we won the summer, but what counts, of course, is what happens Nov. 7."

Kirk admitted that his staff is in a bullish mood after the series of staff upheavals in Gash's campaign staff. "I know the staff changes make things difficult for my opponent. I was surprised that she didn't take part in the Navy Day parade." Kirk also admitted surprise that Gash isn't making much of military and national security needs. "She deferred to me when asked a question about preparedness at the seniors meeting," remarked Kirk who just returned from training with his Navy air wing.

The seniors meeting provided the GOP nominee with what he called the campaign's "sleeper issue." The Republican initiative to repeal the tax on Social Security benefits really went over big at Deerfield, reported Kirk. Why should retired citizens have to pay back on benefits received from the federal government? That makes no sense, Kirk asserted.

Kirk has strong ties with Illinois despite not living in the state after his youth. Before getting a law degree and his Navy service, Kirk started college at tiny Blackburn College in downstate Carlinville. The experience at Blackburn included a year's study in Mexico City. With his fluency in Spanish, Kirk connects easily with Latino voters.

The GOP candidate said voters in the 10th Dist. are concerned about managed care, Social Security and transportation. Asked about military preparedness as an issue, Kirk had this to say in the wake of Democratic charges that the GOP is overstating needs of the armed forces. "Our unit flies planes that are more than 30 years old. Parts aren't even made anymore. We keep flying with parts from other planes and what Navy machinists can manufacture on the spot." No wonder Gash doesn't bring up national security issues.

Asked if the addition of U.S. Sen. Joseph Lieberman to the national ticket will activate the heavily Jewish population along the North Shore, Kirk was pragmatic. He pointed out the Jewish vote runs about 80 percent Democratic. The GOP isn't expected to do much differently than normal.

Kirk relishes the pace of campaign life. He's loaded with energy and ideas, especially offering solutions to district problems where federal government help is needed. "We have to hold Mark back," joked press secretary Dodie McCracken. "We want to preserve his energy for the days ahead."

That big day in November that counts.

Will any Republican stand up—to put down the tollway authority?

After I wrote a column back in July that was critical of the Illinois Toll Highway Authority and the Lake County Transportation Improvement Project, the executive director of the authority wrote a letter to the editor which characterized the column as misleading. Since I don't wish to use the column as a back-and-forth dialogue, let me just say that I stand by the column and if I went to a historical account of the agency it would take about 20 columns to show why the agency needs "real oversight."

I read with interest lately that at a state senate panel to study toll highway financing restructuring, a "transportation expert" said tolls should be raised about 35 cents at manual lanes and 15 cents at I-pass lanes. I guess the expert's logic is that drivers who have longer waits in manual lanes should be further punished by increasing their tolls.

Since the committee hearing did receive prominent publicity, I was amazed that the call for toll-box hikes even after the latest one that was attributed to the elimination of the Deerfield Toll Plaza was met by total silence from all Lake County legislators. I have often said that lawmakers can contribute more good by sounding out on a "bad idea" than some laws that are passed.

How many times have you seen that tax or fee increases start out with a "trial balloon," and when no objections are raised what becomes raised are your taxes? I recall some years ago when the then executive director of the toll highway authority threw up one of those "balloons," and I introduced a resolution of opposition and also gave him a telephone call. As it turned out, the call for a toll hike was immediately dropped and the gentleman retired from the position a couple of months afterward. Wouldn't you know it, the authority didn't need a toll increase for many years after that.

Except for State Rep. Lauren Beth Gash and Rep. Jeff Schoenberg, from Evanston, I have not heard the legislative outcry against the mismanagement of the tollway system that it deserves. We in Lake County know that the tollway empire builders have been planning their extension of Rte. 53 for many years and they are trying to sell it as the "savior of congestion." Because motorists are stuck in traffic now, it's an easy sell because no one thinks about the greater sprawl and congestion that will come if the extension becomes a reality.

Both Gash and Schoenberg are Democrats. It is about time that a Republican in Lake County with some independence of mind and fortitude comes out forcefully against the tollway authority's mismanagement and its extension of toll highways in Lake County and Illinois. Sen. William Peterson did introduce a bill to require that new tollways generate at least 75 percent of its revenue to construct the new roads. After the introduction, I didn't hear any more about it. What is needed is constant, real pressure from a Republican legislative voice, and one who really means it.

What can be said is that the pressure from Gash and Schoenberg has begun to "stir the pot" and Gov. George Ryan's call to study ways to reduce tolls shows that people are finally starting to take a hard look at the toll highway authority. Wouldn't

Democrats picking up on VA closing issue

With the future of North Chicago Veterans Hospital in jeopardy, 1,300 employees are keeping a wary eye on decision makers in Washington.

They're joined by officials of nearby Chicago Medical School who have had a training hospital relationship with the VA facility since relocating to Lake County some 20 years ago.

Hospital advocates say U.S. Senator Dick Durbin (D-Ill.) was "grand-standing" when he talked last spring about a new sharing agreement with the Navy that would save the hospital. No such thing. Great Lakes Naval Training Center has a long-standing agreement with the VA to provide nine days of experience at North Chicago VA for medical corpsman students. But that's all.

With the exception of Republican Congressional candidate Mark Steven Kirk, local political support for North Chicago VA has been all on the Democratic side. Candidate for re-election State Sen. Terry Link (D-Vernon Hills) is making the VA future a campaign issue. State Rep. Susan Garrett (D-Lake Forest) has chipped in with support. The VA medical center is part of their district.

He's running

Fremont Township Supervisor Pete Tekampe didn't wait for the traditional Labor Day jumping off for political candidates. "I'm running," declared Tekampe who is completing his second term. Tekampe operates a custom farming business and is active in affairs of the Lake County Farm Bureau and other agriculture organizations. Tekampe is taking a leadership role in the

A new candidate has emerged to succeed Round Lake Mayor Jim Lumber, who is not seeking re-election after three terms. Friends and supporters of the Antioch attorney say Bill Gentes, a library district trustee and zoning board chairman, reportedly will head up an administration-backed ticket. Patrick Smythe, an auto sales manager who lost to Lumber four years ago by an eyelash, reportedly is giving strong consideration to a second try next year.

Partly home

Bill Shorts passed the one-third mark of his pledge to walk 1,000 miles in his bid for Waukegan mayor in the February primary. An independent Democrat, Shorts reported finding a "disconnect with city hall" among people he meets on his regular jaunts. Latest political rumor to surface in the county seat town is that Republicans won't field a candidate for mayor. Stay tuned.

Rock 'n pace

State Rep. Tim Osmond (R-Antioch) has his campaign for a return to the Illinois General Assembly moving along at a rock 'n' rolling pace. The sweet music for the freshman rep will peak Friday, Sept. 22 at his annual rock 'n' roll party at Midlane Country Club, Wadsworth.

Shades of Peron

Republican insiders still are chuckling over the fact that "Evita," the story about the willful wife of Argentina dictator Juan Peron must be Lance Pressl's favorite Hollywood film. In a Gurnee parade, backers of the Democratic nominee for the 8th District Congressional seat were carrying large photo placards like Peron henchmen used to fire up parade spectators.

Glamour jobs often pressure cookers

Ask a little boy what he wants to be when he grows up and, according to custom, he is supposed to say either a cowboy, football player, policeman or firefighter, maybe.

And his father might add, "President of the United States."

But all of the above are rather undesirable occupations, according to the latest edition of "Jobs Rated Almanac."

The book ranks 250 jobs, and cowboy is among the four worst, along with lumberjack, oil-field roustabout and fisherman.

As for "working environment," the four worst are professional football player, firefighter, race-car driver and, of course, taxi driver.

The most stressful jobs, according to the almanac, include surgeon, race-car driver, firefighter, senior corporate executive and president of the United States.

The president is well-compensated, $400,000 a year plus fringe benefits galore, but his pay pales in comparison with some of the most lucrative jobs: professional basketball player, $2.6 million a year; baseball player, $1.7 million; and football player, $1.1 million, on the average.

Those are grown men frolicking in games they loved as children. But the jobs they aspired to have little security and lots of stress.

The least stressful jobs, according to "Jobs Rated Almanac," are medical records technician, janitor, forklift operator, musical instrument repairer and florist.

As for really cushy jobs, the almanac puts financial planners at the top of the list because of their low stress, high income and plenty of time off. Others in the top five are web-site manager, computer systems analyst, computer programmer and insurance actuary.

The top-10 ranked jobs all are in the math or computer-related fields.

A financial planner's job is to advise clients on consolidating their investments and financial needs.

Says certified financial planner Joel Kantor: "Most of my clients want to plan for retirement. They want to know when they can retire and how much they will have when they do. Also, how their current lifestyle affects their ability to achieve financial independence, which means having to work only when and because you want to.

"I want to know the least amount of risk a client needs to make a portfolio last until at least age 100."

Now that football season is in full swing, we can turn on our television sets every weekend and marvel at a group of men who handle job pressure with swashbuckling aplomb.

I'm talking about the kickers, the normal-sized guys on the sidelines waiting to be called into action.

About one-third of professional football games are decided by three points or less, so the outcome often hinges on a field goal attempt — and often in the final seconds.

The kickers have all the job security of a wing walker at an air show. If they start missing field goals, it's bye-bye booter. Yesterday, "the Toe," today, the heel. Eager replacements are waiting three-deep in the wings. It's a short trip from place-kicker to gym teacher.

I know of few other jobs with that kind of pressure; it's almost as terrifying as a writer on a deadline with a blank sheet of paper in front of him. Talk about swashbuckling!

Meeting results in safety measures

Gurnee—Tollway and village officials took positive steps to make the northbound Grand Ave. exit from I-94 a safer place for travelers.

After a meeting between village and Illinois State Toll Highway Authority officials, new safety measures at the exit were immediately put into effect.

A moveable flashing sign has been placed just south of the Grand Ave. exit. The sign warns motorists that traffic slows because of the large amount of vehicles that use the ramp. A permanent sign will later be erected.

The tollway authority will also look at using the right shoulder as an extra lane during peak times.

Urgent care center to close

Lake Villa—Effective Sept. 23, the Provena St. Therese Area Treatment Center, located at 37809 N. Rte. 59 in Lake Villa, will be closed. The center, serving the community since 1980, is closing because of "inadequate reimbursement levels from managed care companies and state insurance programs," said Tim Selz, president of Provena St. Therese Medical Center, in a written statement.

Dist. 117 seeks referendum

Antioch—In a special meeting held by the Antioch Community High School Dist. 117 Board of Education, a resolution was adopted for placing a question on the Nov. 7 ballot.

The district will put two questions on the ballot. The first asks for a tax rate increase to fund new construction. The second tax rate increase would go to the district's education fund.

Trustees deny pay raise

Grayslake—Grayslake trustees and the mayor discussed raising their own salaries and the salaries of the various committee members.

After examining surrounding communities salaries, the board decided to leave the committee member pay rates alone.

On the salaries of elected officials, Trustee Stacy Braverman said that though the board must ultimately vote on any salary changes, they should not be the ones who decide whether a pay raise is needed or not. Braverman suggested the village form an ad hoc committee of citizens who would look at the salaries and determine whether a pay raise is warranted.

That motion was denied after a 3-3 tie. After that, the issue was dropped.

Dist. 128 faces deficit

Libertyville—Libertyville and Vernon Hills High School Dist. 128 has released its budget for the fiscal year 2000-01, and the news is not good.

According to the budget figures, LHS/VHHS will face a total deficit of over $8 million this school year.

Consequently, officials are pushing for a 36-cent per $100 property tax increase to alleviate some of the districts financial woes.

Fox Waterway needs permit

Waukegan—A Lake County Circuit Court judge agreed with Stormwater Management Commission's (SMC) argument that a geo-tube project falls under its permitting authority.

"They applied for a permit in 1998, and only needed two additional items. One was documentation of erosion in the vicinity so we can determine if there is compensatory flood plain storage needed. The other is a minimal $340 permit," said Ward Miller, SMC director.

"We have stopped work on the geo-tube immediately after the court hearing. We are trying to work out some details regarding the permit. We have a month to pay the fee," said Linda Ryckman, FWA spokesman.

Dist. 116 faces hiring freeze

Round Lake—The Round Lake Area Schools Dist. 116 Financial Oversight Panel has ordered a district-wide hiring freeze to take effect immediately until the budget is balanced. The budget is due to be submitted on Sept. 15 for review.

Currently, there are 17 people filling positions that the district had already hired, pending panel authorization, according to Dr. Mary Davis, superintendent of schools. Their status with the district is unclear, because the panel has not officially approved the hires.

SEEING

it be a welcome sight to see a Lake County Republican legislator assume a major role in restructuring the toll highway authority?

It was also interesting to read that at the senate hearing and elsewhere there have been calls to use federal and state funds to build highways to be turned into tollroads. That is the opposite of what the theory was in building toll highways; in other words, construct the highways with bonds paid off with toll box revenues and then turn them into freeways when the bonds were paid off. That was great logic, but it never worked out that way because the "tollway empire builders" never wanted the bonds to be paid off so they kept building new tollway extensions.

How many times did I hear tollway spokesmen say "you can't tell us what to do because we don't use federal or state funds and we are only beholden to our bondholders." All of that has changed because they changed the law and the right of ways purchased by the state can be turned over gratis to the toll highway authority. That's all the more reason why the state should assume responsibility of the agency and make it truly accountable to the public and the motorists who use it.

We have enough tollways in Illinois right now. Right from the mouth of the person who was executive director of the agency way back when, the bonds on the Tri-State were paid off in 1980. The agency didn't live up to the law then by not turning the highway into a freeway. That's 20 years ago. We must get rid of the chant of Tollway or No Way; instead it should be TOLLWAY—NO WAY.

Purchasing at auction based on 'take a chance'

More and more current and potential home buyers are fascinated by the "take a chance" approach by purchase through auction.

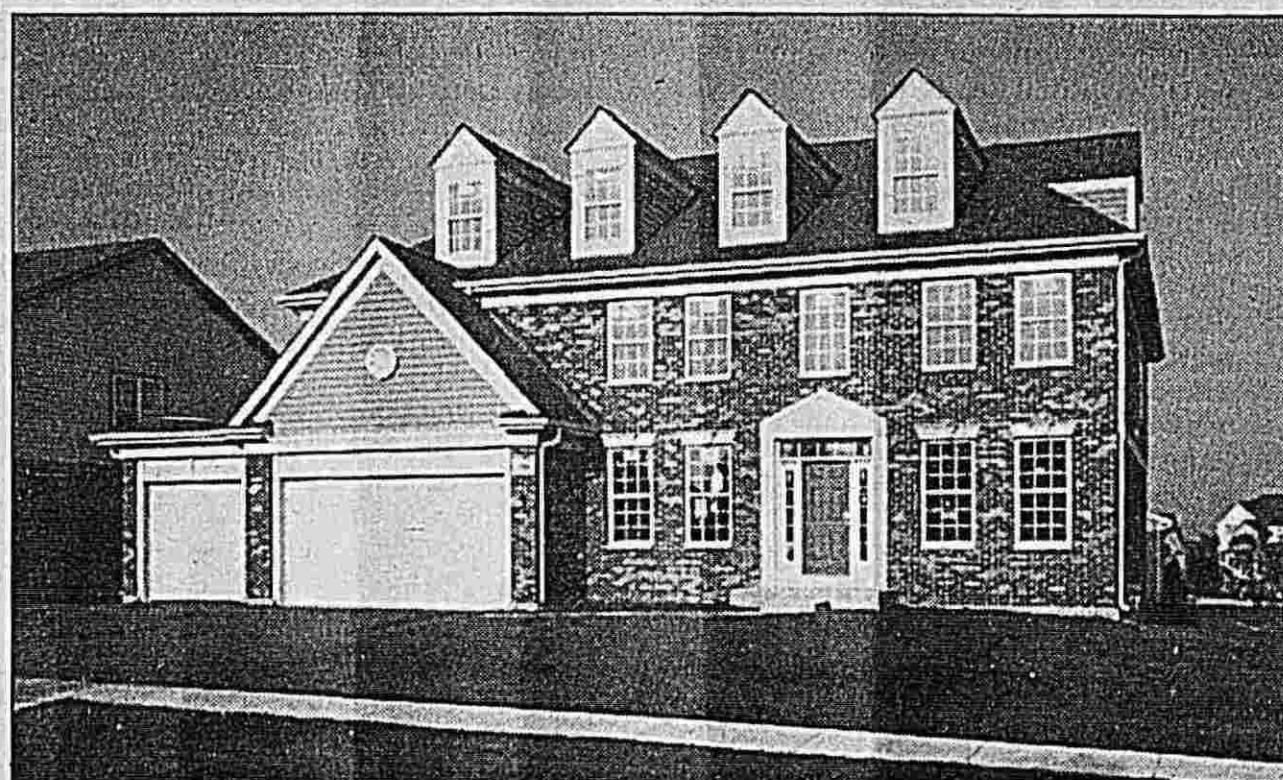

Sheldon Good & Company is an auction firm that has maintained a high profile in Lake County.

In a series of September auctions, the Chicago-based company offered 97 metro-area residential properties for bidding, including homes in Antioch, Vernon Hills and Waukegan. The properties are part of $30 million in United Homes inventory Sheldon Good has been retained to sell for the builder that filed for Chapter 11 protection earlier this year.

The fall auctions do not involve United homes and properties in Brooks Farm Subdivision, Wilson Rd., Grant Township.

Steven Good, president of Sheldon Good, said auctions serve a purpose of reducing them and costs of typical sales methods.

Two single-family homes and seven homesites from Cypress Point at Gregg's Landing in Vernon Hills will be auctioned by Sheldon Good & Company, Sept. 17.

Twenty-one homesites and one single-family home from Tiffany Farms in Antioch, will be auctioned by Sheldon Good & Company, Sept. 14 & 17, respectively.

The auction cycle is not complicated and begins with the announcement of available properties. Next comes the inspection phase, typically two open houses. Interested bidders then are required to purchase a $20 bidder's information packet and attend a due diligence and bidder's information seminar.

Sometimes the seminars are held immediately prior to the auction.

Before the auction, bidders are made aware of a suggested opening bid. They must bring a certified or cashier's check, usually 10 percent of the suggested opening bid, to put down toward the purchase price.

From that point, the closing follows customary procedures. Properties can be sold absolute, meaning what ever is bid, or owners have the option of withdrawing if bids do not meet expectations.

The Antioch auction was a bulk parcel of 21 homesites and one custom home at Tiffany Farms offered through an open-outcry auction.

The Vernon Hills auction was offering two partially completed single-family homes and seven homesites in Gregg's Landing, a master planned development. In Waukegan, two single-family homes and 21 homes sites at Fields of Bayberry are up for auction.

Sheldon Good & Company can provide information on the auction process at 312-346-1500.

All yards are not created equal—landscaping can help sell your home

A potential buyer's first impression of your home is the exterior and the yard can do a lot to add to your curb appeal. Whether you have a green lawn or a wooded lot, there are many landscaping choices you can make to help your entire home look its best. Here are a few tips on how to spruce up your green spaces from Coldwell Banker Residential Brokerage:

- Imagine you're the potential buyer. What do you notice first about the exterior of your home? Maybe your front walk is a little overgrown and needs a face-lift or your driveway could use more lighting.

- Trim the bushes. Keep the bushes looking controlled and shaped, but still healthy. "Well groomed bushes look tidy and make your landscaping appear low-maintenance, which is attractive to most buyers," said Fran Broude, regional vice president, Coldwell Banker Residential Brokerage.

- Add some color. Even if it's as simple as geranium pots on your front porch, a little color will do wonders for the look of your house.

- Keep the lawn mowed and the leaves raked. If your lawn looks upkept, it will reflect poorly on your home, despite how spotless the interior may be. Regular mowing will keep this under control.

- Keep the seasons in mind. Always try to have a few trees or bushes that will stay green year-round to liven up your yard during winter months. Also, choose flowers with varied blooming periods. Your Realtor can help you with seasonal considerations when you put your home on the market. A home with well-maintained landscaping is easier to sell, especially if it looks good in all seasons.

Garden experts share tips for successful fall gardening

As the days grow shorter and the daytime temperatures become cooler, you might think it's time to stop gardening until next year. But garden experts have this advice: Think again. "Fall is one of the most important and most rewarding gardening seasons of the entire year," said Karen Park Jennings, president of the Mailorder Gardening Association and president of Park Seed Co. "Fall is the best time to plant everything from flower bulbs and perennials to trees and shrubs in all but the coldest areas of the U.S."

According to Jennings, planting in the fall allows trees, shrubs and perennials to get a head start on next year's growing season. Even though a plant's foliage may not grow noticeably, its roots will become established after planting in the fall. The following spring, when the plant receives the daylength and temperature it needs, that plant will grow well because it will now be "on schedule" with Mother Nature.

Autumn is also Mother Nature's time to plant wildflower seeds.

"Fall-planted wildflower seeds benefit from the 'natural stratification' - the softening of the seed coats due to cold and moisture - that occurs during the winter months" said Steve Atwood, president of Clyde Robin Seed Co. "When the weather warms up in the spring, the seeds germinate and send down roots to capture the water before it dissipates in the soil or evaporates."

Wildflower seeds planted in the fall typically do not require as much supplemental summer irrigation, says Atwood. However, spring-planted seeds always require additional water. Fall is also the time to collect seeds from the wildflowers already growing in your garden. Just clip the heads from the wildflowers and let them dry.

Plant Bulbs, Divide Perennials

Fall is the traditional time to plant spring-flowering bulbs, which need a period of chilling before they bloom. Early bloomers such as crocuses and daffodils should be planted in early fall after a frost, and later-blooming hyacinths and tulips can be planted anytime before the ground freezes.

"Planting bulbs is like planting buried treasure," says Debbie Van Bourgondien, vice president of Van Bourgondien. "Bulbs are easy to plant, so they make a great gardening activity for kids. Loosen the soil to a depth of about a foot and mix in some compost. Plant bulbs in well-drained soil and you'll be rewarded with brightly colored flowers early next spring."

To prevent chipmunks and squirrels from digging up freshly planted bulbs, throw a few mothballs into the holes when you plant bulbs. Or, put a few drops of turpentine in a paper bag along with the bulbs you'll be planting. Shake the bulbs gently, then leave them in the bag overnight to absorb the turpentine smell. Most animals hate the smell of mothballs and turpentine - so they'll leave the bulbs alone.

Fall is a good time to divide flowering perennials such as purple coneflowers (Echinacea purpurea) and black-eyed susan (Rudbeckia fulgida "Goldstrum"). If a perennial has been in the same location for several years and you've noticed a decline in its flower output, dig up the plant and divide the root ball with a spade or hatchet into two, three or four pieces. This process invigorates the plant and each portion will grow more vigorously next spring.

Hardy perennials need a period of dormancy with consistently cold soil temperatures during the winter. In areas where winters are severe enough to freeze the soil, apply a generous layer of mulch around plants after the ground is frozen. The mulch will keep the soil from warming up prematurely in early spring.

Tool Care and Spring Planning

Because fall is generally a more relaxed gardening season, it's the perfect time to care for your neglected gardening tools. According to Vicki Duguay, marketing specialist for Johnny's Selected Seeds, you can rid your pruners of sticky sap with distilled vinegar and an old toothbrush. Then, wipe the clean, dry metal parts with an oil-soaked rag. (Yes, vegetable oil works well.)

To extend the life of digging tools and to maintain the resiliency of their wood handles, sand off the varnish and coat the handles with linseed oil. Tools with moving parts, such as carts and pruners, appreciate occasional light lubrication. Keep cutting and digging tools as sharp and efficient as when you first acquired them by periodic sharpening along the existing bevel. With adequate care, says Duguay, one good tool will outlast three of lesser quality.

If you've been growing houseplants or herbs in pots on the patio, it's time to bring most of them indoors (or into your greenhouse) when nighttime temperatures fall below about 50 degrees F. According to Carol Yaw, owner of Charley's Greenhouse Supply, potted herbs can be successfully grown indoors with at least five hours of direct sunlight (a south-facing window is best) or with supplemental fluorescent lighting. Fertilize herbs monthly with a fish emulsion or seaweed fertilizer diluted to half strength.

For those gardeners who love to plant flower and vegetable seeds, autumn is a great time to start planning next spring's garden. "Don't wait until next spring to order seed-starting supplies such as heat mats and grow-lights," said Dick Chamberlin, president of Harris Seeds. "By getting your garden planned and your supplies ready, you'll be prepared when next spring comes."

Winterizing your home before the snow falls

Before you know it, shorter days and cool nights will be here to remind us that Old Man Winter is heading our way. Fall is an ideal time to review a checklist and take preventive measures to protect your home against the colder months.

If you're like many homeowners and don't have the luxury of time to take on additional home projects or search the phone book for a qualified service professional, don't fret. Creative businesspeople and new technologies have made it possible for Internet-savvy consumers to turn to the Web for guidance and information on home maintenance, repair and improvement. For most projects, you can even find a service professional on the Web.

One such Web site, ServiceMagic.com (www.servicemagic.com), effectively matches the right consumer to the right service professional and offers more than 485 home improvement, repair and maintenance services. The site also features a resource center of insightful project tips and articles to help consumers learn more about their projects before contacting a service professional.

So, whether you hire a professional to winterize your home or plan to do it yourself, keep the following checklist in mind. "Addressing some low-cost maintenance items now could prevent many high-cost problems later," reminds David Hollies, consumer adviser for ServiceMagic.com.

1. Roof, Gutters and Downspouts

Gutters and downspouts should be cleaned in mid-fall and double-checked before winter. The next time it rains heavily, put on your coat and boots and step out into the yard to observe how well the gutters are working. If they aren't flowing properly, they may need cleaning, realignment or replacement by a gutter-cleaning specialist. Check your roof. If you see evidence of loose, curled, or missing shingles, contact a roofing contractor to make repairs before the stormy season arrives.

2. Furnace

To reduce the chance of a furnace failure during a winter cold snap, consider hiring a heating contractor to give your furnace a "tune-up" this fall. At the very least, on one of the first cool evenings, turn on your furnace to make sure it works well. Replace the filter and keep extra filters on hand to replace at least once during the winter. If you have a humidifier, clean it thoroughly to avoid health problems from airborne bacteria.

3. Insulation

Staying warm and keeping heating bills down are major winter priorities. Check the attic, walls and basement for adequate insulation. Feel around electrical outlets and switch-plates for cold air. Try to remember if there were any cold walls or rooms during the previous winter and if so, contact an insulation contractor for suggestions on the best way to add more insulation.

4. Windows and Doors

Did you know that in the average home, 38 percent of all heat loss is through windows and doors? Look around for gaps and potential places where heated air can escape. Caulk or apply weather-stripping around these areas. If your home has storm windows, check for a proper fit. If you have an older home with single-pane windows, consider having them replaced with low-maintenance thermal windows. This will cut both your energy and maintenance bills.

5. Chimneys

The coziness of a warm, glowing fire in your woodstove or fireplace can continue to be a source of enjoyment if you follow a simple maintenance schedule. Have chimneys and woodstoves cleaned early in the season and inspected by a trained chimney sweep to prevent chimney fires and avoid such serious health hazards as carbon monoxide poisoning.

6. Vents

If your home has a crawl space with vents that are open during the warmer weather, make sure they are closed during the winter months.

7. Outdoor Plumbing

Freezing pipes are expensive to repair, but easy to prevent. Play it safe. Disconnect hoses from outside faucets if your area normally experiences freezing temperatures. If you live in a region with harsh winters, make sure you turn off the water supply to your outdoor faucets before the temperature drops below freezing.

8. Steps and Walkways

Water and ice collecting on steps and walkways may create hazards. To avoid creating an unsolicited (and unsafe) ice rink, consider installing an overhang above the entrance to your home and the steps. If your walkway has poor drainage, consider replacing it with a properly graded walkway.

9. Winter Supplies for Preparedness

Buy a snow shovel before you need it, and stock up on ice-melter and sand for your walkway and driveway. Batteries and portable propane stoves can be invaluable in the event of a power outage. Keep extra canned food and water in storage just in case.

Battling a blizzard — be prepared for winter

Here are some general maintenance tips for getting your snowthrower ready:

- Fresh gas/oil — make sure to fill your gas tank with fresh gasoline. Gas from last year or even from this summer can cause starting problems. Also, change the oil before every season. That insures long engine life.

- New spark plugs — an old plug can be the root behind starting problems. Install a new spark plug every year.

- Check condition of belts — Just like your automobile, snowthrower belts can become brittle and worn.

- Check scraper bar — A scraper bar is underneath a snowthrower, and helps scoop snow into the machine. A worn or missing scraper bar means less efficient snow removal.

- Try vegetable oil spray on the auger to help prevent clog — a little PAM goes a long way. Coat the inside of the snowthrower with the lubricating spray. Wet, packed snow will slide right off and you'll have fewer problems with clogging.

- If your snowthrower does clog, never ever use your hand to clear the snow — First, shut the engine off completely. Then use an old broom handle or cut off shovel handle to help unclog the snow or ice.

DECORATING

Here's how it works: Go to www.homeportfolio.com and start by creating your personal profile. This allows you to save all the products you like as you go. By creating and maintaining a personal profile, you will be able to review all your favorites. Redoing the kitchen? Choose the sink, refrigerator, stove and cabinets. You can give access to others to view your choices, like your interior designer or spouse. You can rate the products you choose for your interior designer or spouse. You can rate the products you choose for your personal portfolio as love it, like it or not my style. These ratings will give all those viewing your personal portfolio an idea of what you like (or don't like). What a great way to communicate with those involved in the design process.

But homeportfolio.com doesn't stop there. There are online brochures on home-design products from lighting and rugs to faucets and mirrors, and a search engine to find your nearest retailer. Manufacturers and design professionals can also find useful service providers on homeportfolio.com.

Bald generation can be passed by father or mother

Dear Dr. Donohue:
Please settle an argument that I have with my 25-year-old son. He says his hair loss is my fault — that I am a carrier for baldness.

His father had fine hair, and his father's mother had fine hair. I have two other sons and the middle one has fine hair. My side of the family has thick hair. This third son was born when I was 47. Could that be the reason for his hair loss? — T.S.

ANSWER: Where did your son get his training in genetics? He's wrong. You're right.

to children. The description of your husband's family makes him the likely source of the gene.

Is lowering the bar on expectations such a good thing?

Hi Dr. Singer,

We just began school and our daughter came home with a spelling test that had an "A" on it. This wasn't the problem. 8 out of 10 words were badly misspelled, yet the teacher saw fit to give our daughter this excellent grade. When we asked the teacher about it, she told us that she gives the kids good grades like that because they try, even if they are wrong. We don't think this is doing anything good for our child or other children. What do you think? J.J.

Dear J.J.,

I have seen this many times before and feel it is very wrong. By allowing this child to believe that her mistakes are correct, she will continue to use those mistakes. Someday, people are not going to accept those mistakes from her and then where will her self-esteem be? When she truly cannot spell. When she is applying for jobs and other people can spell and she cannot, will it make her feel better to know that she was allowed to fail when she was younger because she tried. I doubt it. Additionally, if this teacher is so worried about insulting these kids who have effort but aren't quite producing, then give a grade for effort and a separate grade for the work. And then, (here comes the important part) make sure to train the child in the way to correct the mistakes so that he or she can permanently learn the correct way. That is a proven way to help her feel good about herself. Giving a good grade for poor or incorrect work is insulting and degrading to the child, degrading to you and a sure-fire way to create failure in later life. It is a disservice to the kids, it is lying and I call it lowering the bar. Expecting less from anyone is like saying that they are incapable of producing more than they have. That is like giving up on them and that is so degrading and unfair.

I have worked personally with many kids who were given the impression by their educational past that they couldn't do things right without some special contrived situation. That they had to have a special grading system or another way of lowering the bar to look like they were doing well. Funny, I never met one kid who had a higher self-esteem because of that. They felt worse knowing that this was occurring.

PARENT'S PLACE

I do not believe in that or accept it. I have gently challenged many kids to reach for the stars and to reject that image of them. To prove to those people who think they can't that they actually can, without the "made-up" success, and guess what...they have and they have gotten to places they never dreamed possible. I categorically reject the "lowering the bar" mentality in the name of helping kids feel good about themselves. It does no such thing. At the risk of lots of flack, I don't believe that it is always done to make kids feel better. While all adults certainly don't do this, I also believe that it helps some adults around that child to not have to correct any mistakes. It's less work. Unfortunately, for caring, invested parents like yourselves, you will need to take up the slack and help your child to learn regardless of what the grades are saying. I would suggest that you get a copy of each finished spelling test and have her write each mistake the correct way several times each day. Repetition is what I teach and the way I help kids to get better at everything they do. It will work for you and for her too!

Have faith! There are many other people out there who feel like I do and like you do about this. Maybe there might be another teacher in your school who feels like we do and can take your daughter into his or her class? Check into it!

If Halloween hasn't scared you away from bats, rabies should

The Lake County Health Department/Community Health Center is urging Lake County residents to avoid contact with bats because a rabid bat recently was identified in far northern Lake County.

"While bats are the most part harmless, they are the only animal in Lake County that has been determined to be rabid over the past decade," said the Health Department's Executive Director Dale Galassie. "We are fortunate that, over 10 years, only four rabid bats have been identified. During this time of year, bats are more active because they are preparing to migrate. We are encouraging people to be cautious."

Should you notice a bat acting in an unusual manner, such as flying in daylight, lying on the ground or in your home, contact the Health Department at 949-9925. If a bat bites you, or if there is the possibility that you or a family member could have been bitten by a bat while sleeping, call a physician and the Health Department immediately at 360-6423, or go to your local emergency room.

Parents should make sure children know that they should never touch a bat. Pet owners should be on the alert for bats near their homes, because pets that spend time outdoors can easily come into contact with these animals. If a rabid animal bites a pet, the pet, in turn could bite a person and transmit rabies to that individual. Rabies can be avoided in pets by vaccination. In Lake County, vaccination against rabies is required for dogs and cats to protect them as well as humans against this dangerous disease.

Bats who fly into human living quarters are usually lost youngsters. They often will leave on their own if a window or door to the outside is opened while others are closed. To prevent bats from entering a home, cover chimneys and vents with half-inch hardware cloth screens, install draft guards beneath doors and seal any other possible access routes, especially around screen doors, windows and plumbing. Bats, like mice, can squeeze through surprisingly small spaces.

For further information on pet vaccination as well as methods for excluding bats, call the Health Department's Animal Control facility at 949-9925. In cases where bat colonies need to be excluded from homes, the Health Department recommends contacting a private exterminator.

Fear of the dentist can be put to rest

If you have postponed going to the dentist because the sound of the drill or the fear of pain is more than you can bear, fear no more. You can coast through your next appointment in a sleep-like semi-conscious state using Intravenous IV Sedation.

IV Sedation is a well-proven and safe technique that is easy to administer, taking effect rapidly and producing a pleasant state of relaxation. IV Sedation is extremely effective for patients with excessive anxiety or anticipation of discomfort which may come from a former bad experience with dental treatment," says Dr. Peter Coletti of Manus Dental-Lake Zurich. He adds, "Patients are cared for in a gentle manner and are able to condense several small appointments into a single visit if IV Sedation is administered."

Local anesthetics such as Novocaine, create a very "profound anesthesia" which prevents the patient from feeling discomfort. However, it does not eliminate the sensation of pressure and the patient may feel the procedure as it is happening. With IV Sedation, patients do not feel, hear and rarely remember anything about the dental procedure.

The IV Sedation procedure involves the following steps:

- The patient receives a thorough pre-treatment exam by the dentist.
- The trained, dental anesthesiologist administers the pre-treatment sedative and other medication intravenously while safely monitoring the patient's vital functions using many types of different monitors.
- During the procedure, the dentist and dental assistants use state of the art equipment and techniques to keep the patient is thoroughly relaxed and sedated.
- Upon completion of dental treatment, the patient is carefully monitored by the dental anesthesiologist until fully and safely awake and recovered.

According to the American Dental Association, dentists use various pain and anxiety control techniques to treat tens of millions of patients safely every year. Because there is a certain amount of risk when using any medication, it is important to inform your dentist about your medical history, whether you are taking any medications (prescriptions or non-prescription), and whether you've ever had an allergic reaction to any medication including anesthesia. Understanding the risks and benefits involved in any dental procedure is important so that you and your dentist can make the best decisions about the treatment that is right for you.

Only a dentist who attains advanced hospital based training can administer this type of anesthesia. Of course, you'll need to consult with your dentist to be sure you have no medical conditions that would preclude your taking advantage of this technique.

The cost for IV Sedation ranges from $150 to $500 depending on the length of time required for the procedure. Many insurance companies reimburse patients for IV Sedation and this procedure is submitted to your insurance provider just like any other procedure.

Manus Health Systems, Inc. is a personal care company that develops and provides state of the art business systems, marketing, training and support for a rapidly expanding network of dental practices. 2000 LAKELAND MEDIA FOOTBALL PREVIEW

John Phelps, Steve Peterson and Rob Backus contributed to this report.
Photos taken by Candace H. Johnson and Sandy Bressner.

Here we go again! Are you ready for some football! Outside of the usual excitement where Lake County prep football is concerned, a little history has also been made with Libertyville playing its first home game in over 40 years under its new lights. Also going down in the history books will be brand new neighboring Vernon Hills, who played its first varsity contest Aug. 26.

But look out for a lot of parity around the area this season as the North Suburban has realigned, splitting off into the Lake and Prairie Divisions. It's a chance for new members Round Lake, Grant and Wauconda to establish identities in the NSC Prairie, Lakeland Pre-season Player of The Year Matt Vandaele of Warren looks to run wild on the competition as the Blue Devils should contend with Libertyville in the tough NSC Lake. Antioch and Mundelein, under the direction of first-year coach Jeff Geary, will look to stir up some noise as well. And Grayslake looks to improve in its best showing (4-5 in 1999) in its fourth year in the FVC. Meanwhile, Carmel is also going to taste a new division of its own, the White of the Catholic Metro League.

Warren's Vandaele pre-season Player of The Year

Senior looks to build on sparkling '99 campaign

By JOHN PHELPS
Sports Editor

He receives the ball, dashes right off tackle and is almost brought down as one knee apparently grazes the turf. Then all of a sudden, the Barry Sanders-like jukin' and jivin' have him in the open field, where he makes several cutbacks only to race 78 yards for a score, leaving would-be tacklers in his wake. Sound familiar?

"That's one of his strengths," said Head Coach Dave Mohapp. "He's very unique. He's one of the few backs I've seen that can make a 90 degree cut while at full throttle. Having great field vision also helps."

But you wouldn't know that after talking with the senior running back and co-captain.

"I really didn't know where I was going," said Vandaele on that 78-yard dash, one of his three scores on the evening.

"But I give all of the credit in the world to the offensive line and receivers. They did some excellent blocking downfield. They do the dirty work and open the holes for me."

Actually it comes to no surprise that the senior running back is picking up just where he left off from a year ago.

Last season, Warren's all-purpose player dashed for over 1,300 yards and scored 16 touchdowns as the upstart Devils finished second (5-2) in the NSC and 7-4 overall, including a first-round victory in the 6A playoffs.

"We're just hoping to build on that," said Vandaele. "We kind of anticipated on picking up from the level of play we left off at last season."

With six returning players on the defense, led by senior backer Matt Hadsell, Vandaele's anticipations are right on the money.

"We were the 'Road Warriors' last season," reflected a humble Vandaele. "But this year, I think we're a lot better, especially defensively. You can just call us the 'Warriors' this season."

And Warren, now 2-0 on the young season, has already proven that you better be ready if you want 'to come out and play!' A 41-0 white-wash in the opener, followed by a sound 28-13 victory at Glenbard East, has some heads turning in Lake County. Especially when you refer to the dates Sept. 22 and Oct. 6 on the calendars.

That's when the Devils venture to Stevenson before entertaining Libertyville, respectively.

And of course, these three North Suburban Lake Division powerhouses are picked by many to fight it out for the conference title.

Warren will be looking not only to earn its best-ever finish in the NSC if it wins, but perhaps, a new trend will be set, seeing that Libertyville and Stevenson have won or shared the last seven NSC crowns.

"We just want to keep progressing as the year unfolds," said Mohapp. "This is a great group of kids. We just want to show we can compete with those teams. Basically, we're taking it one game at a time."

Being versatile looks like what the Devils have to offer, especially with the likes of Vandaele in the mix.

But compared to last year, the 5-foot 9-inch tailback's role has been cut down this year, if you can believe that.

"He's primarily a running back," noted Mohapp. "He'll play quarterback when we need a little more speed at that position. We know

Just like last year, the opposition is going to get a good look at Warren's Matt Vandaele-the back of his jersey (No. 29), that is, as the Blue Devil all-purpose player looks to guide the NSC school to the promised land.

teams are going to key on Matt. Because of that, we have been able to get our fullbacks (Elliott Gruber, Justin Williams, Jon Chase) going."

Now it's not often one sees a selfish attitude in an athlete, especially after having been as successful as Vandaele has been.

A lot of guys would get ball-hungry and thrive on the attention, given that they know the spotlight is on them.

"He's just an excellent leader, a hard-working kid and knows what he has to do," said Mohapp. "He's also good in the classroom. Overall, he's very balanced and focused."

Now if Vandaele isn't burning tearing it up from the backfield, he's lined up in the slot and catches short passes.

But it doesn't seem to matter if Vandaele gets the ball once or 20 times during a game-he's going to make you pay.

"I really don't have any individual goals," he said. "We're in this together as a team. Our ultimate goal is to make the playoffs. After high school, I'd just like to go to college and get an education, whether football is involved or not."

In a way, quiet but dangerous. The quiet part, especially on the field, could be questioned, though.

"We just can't get too happy when we get a big lead because we get to complacent," said Vandaele.

With the start Vandaele and the Devils have gotten off to, happy is a good place to be.

Players able to 'rough it' while having fun at Camp Duncan

By STEVE PETERSON
Staff Reporter

There is nothing like a little swimming, volleyball and a friendly game of softball to highlight a weekend camping outing.

The Wauconda football team did all of the above and more during a summer weekend stay at nearby Camp Duncan YMCA.

"We had 33 players here. We felt we had a good time. We all bonded and practiced," said Head Coach Bob Kasper.

A parents group provided the meals. Players stayed at cabins - while there was little creature comforts of home, the VCRs and the CD players made the trip as well. No need for compasses or entertaining via AM radios here.

"It is a fun opportunity to work on the basics and just get together as a staff. We fished, rode the catapult, played volleyball and had softball tournaments and gave away spirit packs," said Kasper.

Kasper thanked the administration and school board for support of the trip, which came during the football camp.

"The goal is still to go 6-3 and make the playoffs," said Kasper.

Kasper is not in favor of the new playoff formula a year away. "That could have some 5-4 or even 4-5 teams make it. It used to be an honor," said Kasper, who has taken the Bulldogs to the playoffs in a previous stint.

Kasper said the camp allowed good bonding between the junior and senior groups.

"I hope they have it next year. It is a good mix and fun and practice," said junior Joe Solimini.

There was one assistant coach who did have a problem with snoring, though.

The Bulldogs open with a home game Aug. 25 against Chicago Orr. The two teams will spend the day together at Wauconda High.

"It should be nice for our first game. The kids will be pored by position. People think there are so much differences, but there sometimes are not," said Kasper. "They will stay in contact with letters and E-Mails. I met their principal and she is real nice and is all for it."

The Bulldogs will be missing the services of long-time assistant coach Gary Simon, who accepted a position in Lake Zurich.

LAKELAND AREA TEAM-BY-TEAM CAPSULES

BIG NORTHERN (RED)

Johnsburg

Last year: 7-3, 4-1 (lost 1st rnd. 4A playoffs)

Key players: QB Brad Preston (So); RB/DE Craig Langohr (Sr);

HB/LB Mike Davis (Sr); C/DL Geoff Foreman (Sr); G/DL Andy Foreman (Jr); K Adam Vesely (So); WR/S Pat Hastings (Sr).

Outlook: Johnsburg, no stranger to the post-season in recent years, brings a young team to the table this season. The Skyhawks feature Davis as the main threat in the backfield. This team will look to grow as the season progresses, particularly in the play of its line. The Skyhawks, following a 22-6 upset loss to Grant in the opener Aug. 25, will look to get back on track with its next two games against Round Lake and Richmond-Burton at home. Quarterback Preston to wideout Hastings proved to be a nice combination in the opener.

CATHOLIC METRO (WHITE)

Carmel

Last year: 4-6, 3-2 (lost first rnd. Catholic Lg. playoffs)

Key players: QB Matt Roe (Jr), RB Ben Lawrence (Sr), RB Eric Luna (Jr), DL Luke Larson (Sr), K Jon Mikrut (Sr)

Outlook: The Corsairs will have there work cut out for them as they changed their conference to Catholic Metro (White) with traditional state powerhouses Joliet Catholic, Marian Catholic and Bishop McNamara. However, the Corsairs will feature a strong running attack led by Roe, Luna and Lawrence that should be able to move the ball against anyone. Special teams, led by soccer star Jon Mikrut, should play a key role for Carmel in scoring and field position. If the Corsairs can play some defense and cut down on turnovers in conference play, look for them to make the playoffs.

Fox Valley Grayslake

Last year: 4-5, 4-5

Key players: T/DT Dan Teschner (Sr); TB/S Eric Flanders (Sr); QB Rhys Salomonson (Jr); DE Sam Stahnke (Sr); WR/CB Brian Demeyer.

Outlook: Chances look good for the Rams improving on their best-ever finish (4-5 in '99) in the always-tough Fox Valley. Junior signal-caller Rhys Salomonson has some big shoes to fill with Willie Wright departed. But in a season-opening 34-20 loss to Cary-Grove Aug. 25, Salomonson proved he can run (76 yards, 12 carries). The primary workhorse on offense though will be senior running back Eric Flanders, who scampered for 135 yards in the opener. On the other side of the ball, the Rams will be solid, with returning starter Sam Stahnke and Dan Teschner anchoring from his defensive end position.

NORTH SUBURBAN-LAKE

Warren

Last year: 7-4, 5-2 (lost 2nd rnd. 6A playoffs)

Outlook: If Friday's 41-0 whitewash over Buffalo

A quick hit on Lakeland-Area teams

Grove was any indication, it looks to be a very good year on the gridiron in Gurnee. There are some holes on offense but with senior running back Matt Vandaele (1,300 yards, 16 TDs in 1999) returning, the running game should be solid, especially if fullback Jon Chase and backup tailback Justin Williams (100 yards Friday) hold their own. The Devils' strength, though, looks to be on the defensive. Seven starters return, including monster linebacker Matt Hadsell. The Devils will definitely contend for its first-ever NSC crown. A good showing in the playoffs is also imminent.

Antioch

Last year: 6-4, 5-2 (lost first round 5A playoffs)

Key players: RB Mark Purnell (Sr); WR Eric White (Sr); LB Scott Hodina (Sr); QB Brandon White (Sr); WR Ari Brown (Sr).

Outlook: With the departure of quarterback Don Lackey and Adam Niles on offense and Conrad Adkins on defense, there are some question marks for the Sequoias, who according to Head Coach Del Pechauer, look to finish in the middle of the pack in the NSC Lake Division. But experience breeds success, and if senior signal-caller Brandon White, senior wide receiver Ari Brown, and the lightning-quick receiving of senior Eric White (846 yards, 5 TDs in '99) materialize, Antioch could surprise.

Libertyville

Last year: 6-4, 4-3 (lost 1st rnd. 6A playoffs)

Key players: RB Gerett Burl (Jr), DB/K/P Mike Marquardt (Sr), RB Mike VerLee (Sr), DL Martin Mieczynski (Sr), DE Marc Sears (Sr)

Outlook: Well, expectations are high for Libertyville's first season under the lights. The very young offensive line will have to mature rapidly in order for the Wildcats to control the line of scrimmage in the running attack. Leading the offensive attack will be Burl, VerLee, quarterback Kevin Egidi and halfback Charles Williams, giving the Cats four guys capable of going the distance every time they touch the ball. New to the Cats is the 46 defense, modeled after the 1985 Chicago Bears. Led by Sears and Mieczynski, the 46 defense shuts down the running game, forcing the opposing offense to pass more often. Marquardt and the rest of the Wildcat secondary should flourish in this new defensive system as Libertyville will be competing with Warren and Stevenson for the conference title.

Mundelein

Last year: 2-7, 0-7

Key players: QB Adam Austin (Jr), RB Josh Gruenewald (Sr), WR Darius Kennedy (Sr), LB Jeff Longabaugh (Sr), S/WR Matt Hermestroff (Sr)

Outlook: Execution is the key for the Mustangs as they seem to have the talent to compete in the NSC. Speed is an asset on this team as track stars Kennedy and Gruenewald should jell with Austin behind and beyond the line of scrimmage in this two-pronged offensive attack that features both a sound running and passing attack. Another key for the Mustangs will be overcoming their undersized defense as they compete with running powerhouses Warren, Libertyville and Stevenson in the NSC.

NORTH SUBURBAN-PRAIRIE Round Lake

Last year: 1-8

Key players: C/RB Ryan Meyer (Sr); OG/DE Quentin Davis (Sr); QB/S Dallas Bassett (Jr); SE Wes Schroeder (Sr); DT Brian Griffin (Sr); G/DT Chris Packheiser (Sr);

RB/Special teams Archie Dalton (Jr). Outlook: The arm of all-around player and starting quarterback Dallas Bassett will be the key. Another key will be if the Panthers can avoid turnovers, as two interceptions helped Westosha (Wis.) prevail in the season-opener Aug. 25. Another factor that wasn't well-recieved by Head Coach Kevin Dempsey were the seven Round Lake fumbles. A little confidence is all these guys need heading into their new conference-the North Suburban Prairie. Defensively, look for big things from end Quentin Davis, a senior.

Wauconda

Last year: 4-5

Key players: QB Brian Malone (Sr); RB/FS Ryan Fearn (Sr); WR/DB Steve Glominski (Jr); RB/DE B.J. Henningfeld (Sr); RB/DB Kyle Frazier (Jr).

Outlook: A strong offseason, the emergence of Malone as starting QB and a 33-0 season-opening win Aug. 25 over Chicago (Orr) boosts Wauconda's hopes as it looks to improve on a 4-5 1999 campaign. Inspiration and numbers will also play a key role. The Bulldogs welcomed 36 players to Camp Duncan, up from 23 last year. More importantly, Wauconda saw an inspirational return by senior Jon Schlif, recovering from an auto accident sustained a week before camp started. Also serving as inspiration is the fact that Wauconda has a new conference affiliation once again, the NSC Prairie. Senior running back Jason Sowle turned in a solid ground game against Orr, rushing for 71 yards and two scores. Signal-caller Malone is sound mechanically and can run as well as pass.

Grant

Last year: 9-2 (lost 2nd rnd. 4A playoffs)

Key players: QB/DB Eric Lemcke (Jr); RB/DB Jerry Schlaiss (Sr); RB/DB Matt Madlener (Sr);

RB/LB Charlie Jasinski (Sr); WR/DE Dave Behm (Jr); G/LB Cecil Pinkous (Sr).

Outlook: On the heels of its best season in school history, including a first-ever playoff victory, Grant looks poised to make some waves in its new conference, the NSC Prairie. The Bulldogs got off to a great start with a 22-6 upset of Johnsburg Aug. 25. Lemcke is Mr. Everything for Grant-he can pass, run out of the option, and play strong defense from his secondary position. The Bulldogs would like nothing better than to set a first in the Fox Lake campuses record books-making the playoffs two years in a row.

Vernon Hills

Last year: This is Inagural season

Key players: QB/S Jason Newburger (Jr); RB/LB Keith Heerdegen (So); WR/LB Chris Fisher (Jr); WR/LB Beau Jennings (Jr); OL/DL Ted Soenksen (Jr).

Outlook: Keeping up the intensity for 48 minutes is the key to the kingdom for the Cougars, which led 12-7 at halftime before falling 41-18 in the season-opener Aug. 26 to Geneva. Junior quarterback Jason Newburger was sharp, tossing two touchdown passes to wideout Chris Fisher, also a dangerous return man. The defense, anchored by junior linemen Soenksen (fumble recovery against Geneva), should be solid but can't afford to give up the quick score. But the drive, desire and enthusiasm are definitely present. The Cougars lack experience, as they have no seniors until next season. However, most of this young team comes from now crosstown rival Libertyville, a quality program in itself. Rest assured next season, VHHS will boast the most experience, with all but five entering their senior campaigns.

Inspired Bulldogs ready to begin play in Prairie Division

By STEVE PETERSON
 Staff Reporter

Wauconda High football players do not need to go far to learn about inspiration and perspective.

A teammate recovered from an automobile accident to report to the Bulldogs' first practice.

"A week after he was in the hospital, he was with us at Camp Duncan. It reinforces coach Bob Kasper's beliefs to not take anything for granted and to play each game like it is your last," said assistant coach Cory Kazimour.

Jon Schliff, a senior, will be a reserve on the Bulldogs offense and defense as the season unfolds.

fold.

The Bulldogs, newcomers to the North Suburban Conference's Prairie Division ranks, come into their new league alignment with a young team with plenty of numbers.

"We have 36 players on the varsity, and that is way up from 23 when coach Kasper took over. We did a lot of off-season recruiting for a lot of guys who had not played football before. The sophomore class had stayed together - in the past, that is when they quit," said Kazimour.

Senior Brian Malone is the starting quarterback this year. He is 5-10, 165. The team's "soap" scrimmage game helped solidify him as No. 1.

"He has proper mechanics and is sound. He has spent a lot of time in the weight room, and worked on speed development in the morning and a lot of quarterback work," Kazimour said.

The juniors could supply up to seven starting positions on either side of the ball, Bulldogs coaches said.

Senior Ryan Fearn, 6-0, 195 running back and free safety, returns.

Kyle Frazier, a 5-9, 160 pound wide receiver, is the team's best athlete, Kazimour said. "He can catch and run and has good speed," he said.

Junior Brian Bavaro saw playing time as a sophomore. He is a 5-10, 205 pounder. "He can bend press 350. He is our strongest kid," said Kazimour.

Junior Steve Glomski is a 6-1, 170 junior who could be someone to watch at wide receiver and defensive back.

The Bulldogs came into the season as a young team preparing for the Chicago Public League team it had handled in the past. Orr players spent the day learning the life of suburban Lake County high school prior to the game.

"We respect each opponent. We do not take them for granted. It is a chance to work the kinks out," Kazimour said.

"We are not worried about the other teams - just ourselves," he added.

Where are they now!

Former area stars find collegiate homes

With the new high school football season underway, many area standouts from a year ago may be gone from the prep scene but they are certainly not forgotten.

Case in point-Luke Denoma, a 2000 graduate of Antioch Community High School has enrolled this fall at Knox College, where he plans to pursue a degree in economics and participate in football, basketball, and golf.

"We are very excited that Denoma has chosen Knox College," said Knox College head football coach Andy Gibbons. "He is a quality person who will be a tremendous addition to our school and the football, basketball and golf programs."

On the field for the Sequoit, Denoma was the center for a varsity team that qualified for the state playoffs his junior and senior seasons. He was also named captain of the team his senior season. On the basketball court, Denoma qualified for the IHSA 3-point shoot-out during his junior season.

Denoma is a member of the national Honor Society and was the director/facilitator for the Tri-Community Snowflake program. He was also a DARE mentor, a sports layout and managing editor for his nationally recognized school newspaper (the Tom-Tom) and the recipient of the 2000 principal's award.

"I hope to be able to be an active contributor and team member of three Prairie Fire teams," said Denoma. "More importantly, I hope to prove instrumental in bringing back and keeping the Bronze Turkey."

Denoma is the son of Terry and Mary Denoma, of Lake Villa.

Founded in 1837, Knox is an independent, four-year, liberal arts college, located in Galesburg, with students from 45 states and 41 nations. Knox' "Old Main," a National Historic Landmark, is the only building remaining from the 1858 Lincoln-Douglas debates.

Meanwhile, four players are currently making their marks at the highly touted Augustana football program.

They include six-foot, one-inch 165-pound freshman defensive back and Mundelein graduate, Ben Hodges; former Grant High standout, 6'2, 210-pound freshman linebacker, Leo LaBrie; 6'2, 250-pound freshman offensive lineman Ryan Feeney from Grayslake; 6'2, and, 180-pound freshman fullback and former Warren defensive standout, C.J. Cusker.

Ironically, the Vikings will hook up with the University of Wisconsin-Platteville in non-conference action in Platteville September 16 at 7 p.m.

Should be interesting because in Platteville, you'll find rifleman Don Lackey and wideout Jim Richardson, two instrumental pieces of Antioch's playoff team from last year.

"I think it's going to be a great opportunity," said Lackey over the summer. "I really like their (Platteville's) offense. They pass a lot."

LACKEY

Now, since joining the Fox Valley four years ago, the Grayslake varsity football team enjoyed its most successful in posting a 4-5 record.

While Feeney will be wreaking havoc at Augustana, two other key players from the 1999 Rams will also be looking to mark their mark in the collegiate ranks.

Quarterback Willie Wright has committed to the University of Chicago where he will be playing football as well as baseball. Wright was voted Most Valuable Player by his teammates is also the co-valedictorian of his class.

RICHARDSON

will receive a $750 scholarship.

"I have coach Dillon to thank," said Wright. "He nominated me for the award and I'm really excited about being selected. Coach has been very helpful to me and my parents during the whole recruiting process."

Dick Maloney, head football coach at Chicago said, "We're very excited that Willie has signed to attend and play football at Chicago. The University of Chicago is one of America's great universities and Willie's outstanding classroom work, superior athletic ability and his wonderful personal qualities make him an ideal fit for Chicago."

Wright will be joining a football program that has won over 60 percent of its games in the past six years, including a University Athletic Association title in 1998.

Grayslake athletic director and head football coach Dan Dillon added, "Willie was undoubtedly a catalyst for any success we had on both sides of the football this past season. He will certainly be missed as he graduates but has set the precedent for future quarterback at Grayslake."

Wright ranked first in a class of 336, was an All-Fox Valley, all-state academic team and Lakeland all-area selection in 1999.

Wright is also a member of the National Honor Society and was a student council representative for all four years.

He is the proud son of Mike and Dawn Wright.

Kicker Chris Ehresman will also get to showcase his talents in the college ranks, as he will be competing for a kicking position at Illinois Wesleyan next fall.

Ehresman broke three school records for the Rams during the 1999 season, including the longest field-goal (41 yards), most field-goals in a game (three), and most PATs in a season. His talents helped the Rams have one of their most competitive seasons since joining the Fox Valley four years ago.

"We're really proud of all these athletes," added Dillon, who resigned as athletic director effective the end of last school year but will continue to coach varsity football. "It's really tremendous for our program."

PET TALK By John J. Csiha

BEWARE OF DISCARDED ANTIFREEZE!

Each year many dogs and cats die from ingesting discarded antifreeze. The toxic agent in antifreeze is ethylene glycol, an industrial solvent used in manufacturing detergents, paints, and lacquers. Although some newer products contain a less toxic chemical than ethylene glycol, there are still many antifreeze products on the market that contain ethylene glycol. It is highly toxic and takes only a small quantity to be deadly, especially if treatment is not instituted immediately. Its sweet taste is very appealing to pets. Although poisoning cases are seen by veterinarians year round, the most common times of the year are fall, winter and early spring.

Dogs and cats show signs of toxicity within 30 minutes to 12 hours following ingestion of ethylene glycol. The first signs usually include ataxia (lack of muscle coordination), depression and vomiting. If your pet has been outdoors and you notice these symptoms, call your veterinarian IMMEDIATELY! With early treatment, pets can sometimes be saved.

John J. Csiha is a Pharmacist specializing in compounding of veterinary prescriptions. He can be reached at Petranek's Pharmacy in downtown Libertyville.

Do you own a pet with a medical illness?
Is your veterinarian having difficulty finding the proper treatment?

Are you having trouble administering your pet's current medication?

Petranek's Pharmacy can help.

The pharmacists at Petranek's have years of experience compounding prescriptions from area veterinarians. Treatment options that would not otherwise be available can be made right in the pharmacy. Oral medications can be made in a variety of forms and flavors to ease administration to your pet.

If your veterinarian is having difficulty treating your pet with current available medications, have him or her give us a call to discuss treatment options.

STARTING YOUR OWN BUSINESS?

WE CAN HELP YOU WITH AN IMPORTANT REQUIREMENT.

Illinois law requires that individuals conducting business under any name other than the real name or names of the owners must file an Assumed Name Certificate with the County Clerk in the county in which the business is conducted. The certificate must be published in a newspaper of general circulation in the area, and the county will not register the business until publication notice is complete and the publisher returns a certificate of publication.

Lakeland Newspapers makes this publication requirement simple and hassle-free.

Fax your notice to (847) 223-2691. Notices received by 10:00 A.M. Tuesday are first published in that week. Prepayment is required, unless the notice is filed by an attorney. We accept MasterCard, Visa and Discover. Our service is friendly and knowledgeable. Call (847) 223-8161, ext. 501 with any questions.

The law requires publication for three successive weeks. Our charge for the complete publication is $75. After the third week of publication, we deliver the certificate of publication to the County Clerk.

Pet OF THE WEEK

JET

Jet is a young, adorable female German Short Hair Pointer/Lab mix. She is only 6-7 months old, very pretty with a short, easy care white coat, (nicely accessorized with black). She is literally brimming over with affection, high spirits and natural intelligence. She was given up because of a baby on the way... too bad, that new baby is missing a chance for a loving, loyal companion who could have been a "best buddy". Why not make Jet your best buddy? She's an ideal addition to a family with children. For information on adoptions, volunteering or events, please call the Assist Animal Foundation at (815) 455-9411.

Lake County tourism attractions join hands for Family Media Day

Lake County's first Family Media Day received a boost when Six Flags Great America joined over two-dozen other local tourism attractions for the event. Family Media Day is a showcase of Lake County tourism attractions, all under one roof at Wauconda Orchards in Wauconda on Sept. 9 from 11 a.m.-3 p.m. The unique event is a joint production of the Lake County, Convention and Visitors Bureau and Wauconda Orchards.

"We are very excited to have Six Flags Great America participate in Family Media Day," noted Gail Svendsen, president/CEO of the Lake County Convention and Visitors Bureau. "Thousands of folks throughout the Midwest flock to Six Flags' Fright Fest each year. Family Media Day offers a great opportunity for Six Flags to promote this activity alongside major players in the Lake County tourism market such as Gurnee Mills, Bass Pro and the two dozen other Family Media Day partners."

Family Media Day provides an opportunity for members of the media to sample the best of Lake County tourism attractions. Wauconda Orchards Family is donating a free day of fun and frolic for media members—and their families—that includes an old-fashioned barbecue, apple picking hayrides, pony rides, peddle tractor rides, boo-barn, country bands and Wauconda Orchards' popular corn maze.

"We're really excited by the response of so many of our friends in the media," said Rick Breeden, president of Wauconda Orchards. "We hope they enjoy a beautiful day with us out here in the country."

Six Flags Great America will be represented at Family Media Day by one of their Looney Tunes characters. Other local tourist attractions represented at the event include Best Western Regency Inn, Comfort Inn-Waukegan, Cuneo Museum and Gardens, Didier Farms, Flatlander's Restaurant and Brewery, Glunz Family Winery, Gurnee Holiday Inn, Gurnee Mills, Hampton Inn and Suites, Hawthorn Suites at Midlane Golf Resort, Illinois Beach Resort and Conference Center, Historic Long Grove, Homestead Village Hotel, Lake County Discovery Museum, Lambs Farm, Mainstreet Libertyville, Marytown Seminary, Mickey Finn's Brewery, Mundelein Holiday Inn, Quig's Family Orchard, Rainforest Cafe, Rink Side Sports and the Power House from ComEd as well as Wauconda Orchards and the Convention and Visitors Bureau.

Members of the media can RSVP to Family Media Day by contacting the Lake County CVB at 662-2100, ext. 17. For more information about Media Family Day, contact the Bureau at that same number. Bluegrass Band performs Sept. 17 followed by a luncheon and wedding gown fashion show at Midlane Country Club. The wedding gowns consist of gowns that were worn by graduates from the high school over the last 55 years.

"Some of these dresses have been in their families for over 50 years," said Mary Ellen (Durkin) Vanderventer, class of 1973 and co-chair for the Holy Child Remembered Fund-raiser. "And since many of us can no longer fit into those size six wedding dresses, the daughters and grand daughters of the graduates will model the gowns," said Vanderventer.

The nuns are residing in Drexel Hill, Penn. and the former students wanted to help the Sisters in their retirement years. "We believe this event is the best way to give back to nuns who dedicated their lives to us," said Vanderventer. "The response has been fabulous. Everyone knows someone who went to Holy Child. Nearly 500 tickets have already been sold." Along with sponsorships, underwriting and an Ad Book the graduates have already surpassed their goal of raising $25,000.

Cornelia Connelly, who began the congregation in England, founded the Sisters of the Holy Child Jesus. Holy Child Schools were established in the U.S. with schools in Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey as well as Illinois.

The first graduating class in 1925 consisted of 28 girls. The school continued to grow over the next 55 years with new wings added in 1931 and 1957 because of increased enrollment.

"The school was a landmark in the city of Waukegan and well known throughout Lake County for providing an excellent education for young ladies," said Janet Kilkelly, class of 1972 and co-chair for the Holy Child Remembered fund-raiser.

"It's wonderful to do something to benefit the Sisters and have the opportunity to get together with old friends," said Kilkelly.

The last graduating class from Holy Child was in June of 1976 when the school had to close because of lack of funds.

Serving on the Steering Committee for this event are: Sue (Steele) Bersie '70, Denise (Twardy) Charts '69, Linda (Gates) Lauret '67, Sister Kathleen Popit '64, Sue (Goodboub) Schwab '66, Linda (Devine) Schuerieman '65, Kathleen (Kilkelly) Thompson '69 and Mary (Fick) Walker '67.

Tickets and sponsorships are still available. For more information, call Sue Schwab at 662-6253 or Linda Lauret at 623-8049.

Candy land

By TIM FROELICH

There is a place in Lake County that is every child's dream—a factory that manufactures over 150 gourmet candies to satisfy any sweet tooth.

But perhaps what this hidden world of sweets and sometimes brilliant colors is best known for is its world-famous Jelly Belly jelly beans.

The Goelitz Confectionery Company, located at 1501 Morrow Ave. in North Chicago, is a tan-colored brick building that looks similar to most of the other industrial sites in the area. However, what goes on behind these walls is an entirely different story.

In 1898, German immigrant Adolph Goelitz opened a candy making company in Cincinnati, Ohio, with the help of his neighbor William Kelley. In 1901, Kelley's cousin Edward was hired as a bookkeeper, and eventually fell in love with and married Joanna Goelitz. This event formally joined the Goelitz and Kelley families into a partnership that became the cornerstone for a business that would eventually grow into one of the country's best-known candy manufacturers.

The company moved to Chicago in 1903, and prospered, but didn't stay long. Ten years later, the families purchased a factory in North Chicago. When income tax was introduced in 1913, it forced many smaller candy makers out of business. However, the Goelitz business was already well-established, and continued to grow. At the time, the company's biggest seller was candy corn. Butter creams, now known as mellocremes, were its primary product for about the next 50 years.

Then, in the mid 1970s, something happened that would change the face of candy forever. A request for a new kind of jelly bean came to Herman Rowland, who is a descendant of the Goelitz family, and chairman of the board for the Herman Goelitz Candy Company in Fairfield, Calif. David Klein, who worked as a driver for a candy distributor, had a dream since his childhood to create "the Rolls Royce" of jelly beans.

In the summer of 1976, eight flavors of this jelly bean were crafted and sold individually for the first time. They became known as Jelly Belly jelly beans.

"He's really the father of Jelly Belly," said William Kelley, president of North Chicago's Goelitz Confectionery Co.

Flavors such as Cream Soda, Peppermint and Root Beer had never been made into a jelly bean before, and the public demand for these new flavors increased. Consequently, the California plant required additional production to keep up with demand for the new product. The North Chicago plant began producing the Jelly Belly jelly beans, and the two factories gradually began increasing the number of flavors they sold.

The process used to make Jelly Belly jelly beans can be time-consuming. In fact, it takes 7-10 days to make one bean.

First, a computerized machine combines sugar, water and corn syrup which are cooked, then gravity-fed into a molding machine consisting of starch. The mold is made by a machine that leaves an impression in the starch, leaving exactly enough space for 1,260 jelly beans to be made on each tray.

After this process is completed, the liquid candy mixture sits in trays—and hardens. The jelly beans are then sent to the basement to be hand-coated with a special glaze. From there, they are put into large metal ob-

'Marriott's Evita' a pleasant surprise

We've seen the musical story of the life of Argentina's most famous, or infamous first lady, many times as eulogized operatically by two names you may have heard, Andrew Lloyd Weber and Tim Rice. When "Evita" opened on Broadway over 20 years ago, we were stunned by its magnificence. Several local showings later, including ones at the Marriott Lincolnshire Theatre, we were still thrilled by its outstanding score, not to mention its memorable lyrics and powerful story.

When the erstwhile Madonna and her great performance got short changed at Oscar time, we enjoyed the movie enough to add a copy to our video library.

Needless to say, the thought of attending the latest local production at the Marriott Lincolnshire, left much to be desired.

We were more than pleasantly surprised as the lights dimmed on Press Night at the Marriott, to find Weber's music could still thrill us, and Eva's story could still keep us spellbound.

In the title role Susan Mc Monagle commands Marriott's stage with her smooth strong voice, just as Mrs. Peron mesmerize an entire country. Anne Gunn is the alternate Eva.

James Keith's Che stalks her as she begs Argentina to love her.

As usual their duets "High Flying Adored," "Don't Cry For Me Argentina," and "Eva's Final Broadcast," are show stoppers.

The booming voice of Robert Reid LaFrance, who plays Juan Peron, lends itself to two outstanding duets with Mac Monagle "I'd Be Surprisingly Good For You," and the rousing "A New Argentina." The powerful vocal ensemble meets the challenge of Weber's stirring score.

A vocal standout on a stage full of standouts is that of Johanna Mac Kenzie Miller in the role of Peron's mistress as she bemoans "Another Suitcase in Another Hall."

Costumes and set design done by Nancy Missimi and Thomas M. Ryan respectfully, are state of the art.

Marriott's surprisingly fresh production that tells the story of a young Argentinian girl who rises from the ghettos to the palaces of her country, to die before her 40th birthday, runs through Oct. 29. —By Gloria Davis

Dead or alive, Elvis still gets top billing

Mom. Mom. Mom." A voice whispered. For cryin' out loud, I thought, these kids even talk to me in my dreams. I pulled the covers tighter.

"Mom. Mom. Mom."

Darn. I wasn't dreaming.

"What, what, WHAT? And what time is it anyway?" I grumbled. I am not a morning person. I am barely a person at all before 8:00.

I opened one cranky, blurry eye to see which child dared to wake me, I say "dared" because in my career as a Mom, I have never once been referred to as, "Angel of the Morning."

It was my son, the sixth-grader. I had to give him credit. It took plenty of courage to wake me up. Although at 6:30 in the morning, I would prefer to be the mother of Don Knott's children.

"You have to wake up, Mom. There's a HUGE spider in the kitchen and now I can't go downstairs!"

On second thought, maybe I am the mother of Don Knott's children.

At least it seems like it when it comes to spiders. In our house, arachnophobia is an inherited trait. It has been passed from father to son completely intact. And my daughter is right there with them except in her case, she just likes to scream.

But the irony is that, by default, I am the official family spider killer. Me, the one who still believes in the bogeyman and sleeps with the covers pulled up to her chin so the vampires don't get her. Me, the one who can't even walk from the house to her car alone in the dark without whispering, "I do believe in spooks. I do believe in spooks. I do, I do..." However, while I am the biggest chicken in the world when it comes to things I can't see, spiders are at least visible. And, in my opinion, they are best viewed only one way—flat and gooey.

Anyway, back to our story. I grudgingly got out of bed to do my duty—spider extermination, at 6:30 in the morning. Down I went to the kitchen, determined to "raise the mammoth". I cautiously peered around the refrigerator, where the monster had last been seen. Nothing. I checked the rest of the kitchen. Nothing. I got the broom and swept underneath and along the sides of the refrigerator in case it was hiding. Nothing.

Finally, I turned to my son.

"Brandon, there's no spider here."

My son spoke from his position of safety atop the kitchen chair. "Oh, yes, he is! He's here somewhere, I know it."

"C'mon, I don't think there even WAS a spider. You were probably imagining it."

Apparently, spiders can hear. No sooner had I uttered those words and turned back toward the refrigerator to say "See?" when I found myself facing THE MAMMOTH.

LIFE'S A BEAR

Technically, it was a woolly mammoth. One of those big, hairy wolf spiders that have legs like springs. He was facing me and poised for action, looking as though he'd jumped out from his hiding spot and was daring me to come near him. "Hey, you. Cranky blonde. You wanna piece of me?"

I quickly stepped back out of his jumping range. I may be a spider killer, but only when they're not looking. I needed to find something big to smack him with, like an SUV.

But suddenly, I got a better idea. After all...Elvis was in the building.

Ah, I thought, perfect. I'll give the job to our Corgi, Elvis. He will attempt to kill and eat anything bite-size. Just last week, he spent several minutes trying to kill a hot pepper.

"Look, Elvis," I said, pointing his nose in the direction of the spider. "Get him!"

For a change, the dog actually did something I told him to do. He made a mad, brave rush at the spider, then backed up. Another rush, another retreat. Then at last, he had him. He grabbed the spider with his teeth, flung it in the air and dropped it, repeating the whole sequence several times until he finally decided the darn thing wasn't edible. Unfortunately, the spider, though temporarily rendered immobile by dog slime, was still alive.

Fortunately, I was now armed with my husband's size 11 gym shoe.

SQUISH.

"There. Are you happy now? It's dead."

My son breathed a sigh of relief and climbed off the chair.

"Well?" I said. "Aren't you at least going to say 'thank you'?"

Brandon got down on his knees and hugged the dog. "Thank you, Elvis. My hero!"

You know...some days, it doesn't pay to get out of bed.

When you need a relaxing meal, go to the 'farm'

The next time you find yourself wondering "Where shall we go for dinner?" take a ride to Trevor Wis. and visit Colony House.

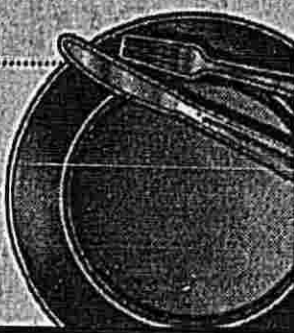

This charming restaurant resembles an old farmhouse set in the middle of a field, bordered by a small creek and is shaded by one of the largest weeping willow trees in southeastern Wisconsin.

The menu is a basic continental offering. Appetizers include an artichoke cheese dip, traditional rumaki, herring, both in wine and cream sauce, oysters florentine and my personal favorite, baked escargots with brie and puff pastry. The main dinner selections are sure to satisfy any appetite or craving, whether you like chicken, veal, beef, seafood, lamb or duck. In addition to the regular menu, the Colony House also has nightly chef specials.

My partner and I started our meal with the escargots appetizer, very tender with just enough garlic, a bit of brie and baked to perfection under little pillows of flaky puff pastry. Next came a caesar salad with one of the tastiest homemade dressings I've had. I ordered the lamb chops which were thick and juicy, served with a twice baked potato and mint jelly. My dinner companion had the strip steak which the menu listed as a 12 oz., but looked much larger. He also chose the twice baked potato to accompany his steak. Our meal was so good and so plentiful that we just couldn't make it to dessert!

Colony House has a small but full service bar, complete with a martini menu (very interesting!). The wine list offers a wide variety of champagnes, whites, reds and blushes. A children's menu includes such dishes as fried chicken and pasta with sauce. The service was friendly and truly added to the country charm of this fine restaurant. I would recommend Colony House for anything from a romantic dinner to a holiday party. The menu prices range from $5.25-$8.95 for appetizers, $10.95-$25.95 for entrees and $4.75-$8.25 for children. Entrees include assorted cheese and crackers, soup, choice of tossed, caesar or spinach salad, choice of baked or twice baked potato, french fries, rice or pasta and a vegetable.

Colony House is located on JF in Trevor, Wis., one mile north and one mile west of Antioch, IL. Hours are Tues., Wed. and Thurs. 4p.m.-9:30p.m., Fri. and Sat. 4p.m.-10:00p.m., Sun. 1:00p.m.-8:30p.m. Closed Mondays. Reservations are appreciated. (262) 862-2076

jects called pans, which polishes the beans, turning them into a finished product. There is also a quality control check on every batch of Jelly Belly jelly beans that assures that the colors and flavors are correct. But just what makes a Jelly Belly so unique?

"We were the first jelly bean manufacturer to put the flavor in the center," said Kelley.

Other companies' jelly beans have a clear center, and are coated with a specific flavor only on the outside. This is why Jelly Belly jelly beans are more expensive, and called "gourmet" beans.

While taking a tour of the North Chicago plant, a person can often literally smell in the air what type of Jelly Belly is being created in each room. On this day, the scent of the company's Licorice flavor lingered in the air.

However, many of these beans are visually appealing as well. In other rooms, the vibrant colors of Goelitz's Lemon Lime and Blueberry flavored Jelly Belly jelly beans sit as a seduction to the eyes. At any given time there are tens of thousands of pounds of candy sitting inside the factory waiting to be shipped to customers worldwide.

In addition to these three flavors, Goelitz manufactures 37 more "official" flavors. Some of the more unusual ones are Buttered Popcorn (which is the company's top seller), Cappuccino, Jalepeño, Margarita, Strawberry Cheesecake and Toasted Marshmallow.

Interestingly, there are also what are known as seasonal, and rookie flavors. Some seasonal flavors are Candy Cane, Gramma's Pumpkin Pie and Cranberry. Rookie flavors include like likes of Dr. Pepper®, Honey Graham Cracker, Spearmint and Tabasco®. Depending upon popularity, rookie flavors either become permanent ones, or are dropped in favor of new trials.

So where do these ideas for new flavors come from? According to Kelley, they come from customers who call, write or E-mail. Some suggestions also come from employees or their research and development team. Kelley knows what the most common but unusual Jelly Belly suggestion is.

"People always ask for pizza," he said. And believe it or not, it's an idea they've actually tried.

"The difficulty with pizza is that it's not sweet," added Kelley. Another problem is that with pizza, there are so many complex flavors such as dough, sauce, cheeses and other ingredients that make it nearly impossible to create an accurate representation.

"When you get into these complex flavors, it's difficult," said Kelley. "One of the one's that's caused a lot of problems is pumpkin pie." The official name is actually Gramma's Pumpkin Pie, and is only released at Halloween time.

But what does the future hold for Jelly Belly jelly beans? Kelley wouldn't go into too many details, but kids may be happy to learn that Goelitz is working with Oddz-On, which is a division of Hasbro® toys. Kelley was hesitant about going into specifics, but did say the jelly beans could have some sort of theme that ties-in with popular children's author Harry Potter.

"I've probably already said too much," commented Kelley with a smile.

Then again maybe not. After all, a company that has been able to keep the secret to its Jelly Belly formulas hidden for 24 years must know a thing or two about secrecy.

The student cast of 140 young adults between ages of 18-25 represent young people from around the world.

And they will culminate their stay with a musical celebration on September 12th when they present the new Up with People show, A Common Beat. This two-hour musical performance is great family entertainment.

Round Lake and Great Lakes Naval Training Center are two of the stops on the 2000 Up with people world tour, before this cast goes on to different states and countries all over the world. There are four other Up with People student casts traveling around the world at the same time. The groups travel to approximately 80 cities on two continents.

During their year on tour, the students have the opportunity to learn new customs and try different foods with each of the hosts families. They give back to the communities by hosting cultural programs in elementary schools or cooking at soup kitchens, for example. They wrap up their visit by performing an energetic musical full of songs and dances — some familiar to audiences, others performed in different languages — but something for every member of the family.

There will be two performances in Lake County. On Friday, September 8, the group will appear at the Ross Theater, Great Lakes Naval Training Center, at 7 p.m. and again on September 12th at Round Lake Senior High School, Round Lake, at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are available at Lakeland Bank Outlets and the Round Lake Area Park District and cost $12 for adults and $8 for children 16 and under. DANCE DANCE DANCE

Center offers classes

Does your little one dream of being a ballerina? Have you been meaning to get back into a dance exercise program? The benefits of dance are endless...the physical benefits include improved posture, balance and coordination. Dance also improves social skills such as sensitivity, understanding, appreciation and consideration for others. Although dance is fantastic exercise, it is primarily an art form and an expression of mind and body.

The Waukegan Park District's Cultural Arts Division, housed at Jack Benny Center for the Arts, 39 Jack Benny Drive (Bowen Park) in Waukegan has planned a number of dance classes for the fall season.

A parent and tot pre-dance class is offered for two-year-olds and pre-ballet classes are available to children three, four and five years of age. Ballet classes start with the six-year-old child and continue on to teens and adults. The Benny Center has added a lyrical ballet class for the more advanced student, as well as a pre-pointe class for students 11 years or older who have four years of ballet experience. Jazz Funk I and II, Tap and Jazz, and Hip-Hop complete the classes offered to the community.

The fall session will run 15 weeks from September 11 to mid-January. The recital session of dance begins in mid-winter.

For more information, call the Jack Benny Center at 360-4740 or stop by the Center at 39 Jack Benny Drive at the north entrance to Bowen Park for specific details on classes and dance attire required for all dance classes.

'Saving Grace' humor mostly smoke

OK, so I inhaled. Most of my generation did. Even you-know-who. The fact is, when inhaling, everything seems funnier. And yes, all manner of food seems attractive. That said, and having been illustrated ad nauseum in numerous Cheech and Chong movies, what sets "Saving Grace" apart from "Up in Smoke" has more to do with class than content.

While "Up in Smoke" was about the quest of two potheads to find the ultimate high, "Saving Grace" gives us Grace Trevethen (Brenda Blethyn), a genteel middle-aged lady whose husband jumps out of a plane sans parachute, leaving her penniless, in debt and in danger of losing her Cornish manor.

Grace, who loves growing things, has a brainstorm when asked to help her caretaker Matthew (Craig Ferguson) save an ailing marijuana plant.

Matthew and Grace turn her lovely greenhouse into a hydroponic "pot" farm, leading the gentlewoman into an outlaw existence, complete with bumbling drug-deal-

In fact, the only person who has a problem with all this is Matthew's expectant girlfriend, waiting for the miracle of "responsibility" to strike him like the heavenly light that streams from Grace's greenhouse every time she fires up the growth lamps.

Of course, we know all will end well. So where are the laughs? I have to admit I laughed out loud, but it was more the humor of recognition than anything else. When two of Grace's dotty friends mistake her "tea" for tea, and brew themselves a pot of "pot," the resulting streak of silliness rings a bell of déjà vu.

Grace is sweet and endearing, and we can't help but wish the best for her, even as she plots to sell massive quantities of illicit drugs. Brenda Blethyn, twice an Oscar nominee, brings grace to Grace, as she depicts the progression of emotion and reaction to the discoveries that, besides being widowed, she was betrayed financially and sexually. Her indomitable spirit is the underpinning that strives to give this farce a deeper meaning.

Grace (Brenda Blethyn) and her gardener Matthew (Craig Ferguson) light up a sample of the home-grown product they plan to market in "Saving Grace."

Craig Ferguson, known to most Americans as nasty Nigel Wick, on ABC-TV's "The Drew Carey Show," plays the role of the loyal but flighty gardener with a good balance of wistfulness and wittiness.

Ferguson co-wrote the script with producer Mark Crowdy. They have produced something much like cannabis itself: a guilty pleasure. While you know it isn't doing you any good or really enriching you, you nevertheless enjoy the giggles along the way. Oddly enough, the best part of the movie is in the early plot development, when Grace discovers her misfortunes one at a time, in a ruthless procession of agony. Blethyn shows her stuff best then, as she reels and recovers from each blow.

The end of the film is, however, like the morning after a binge: it seems you must have had a good time, but it doesn't quite seem worth the effort. A too-pat ending with a sudden, and unlikely romantic twist, left me feeling like I'd gotten oregano in my stash.

Out of the possible five popcorn boxes, I give it two-and-a-half, because the ending was so lame, but I admit that, had I indulged in the touted product myself, the giggles might have gotten it an extra box.

WHERE MOVIE GOING IS FUN AND AFFORDABLE

The Cell

Visually, "The Cell" is completely engulging. There are scenes in the film that no movie-goer will soon forget. From expansive shots of star Jennifer Lopez walking across the crest of a sand dune in the middle of a vast desert, to the haunting landscapes and costumes of serial killer Carl Stargher's (Vincent D'Onofrio) subconscious, the visuals in "The Cell" are hard to match. However, the movie's predictable, even boring, story line does not live up to the visuals.

This story line is nothing more than a science fiction remake of "The Silence Of The Lambs." The movie moves along its predictable path until its conclusion, which is blatantly foreshadowed in one of the opening scenes of the movie. And the acting in "The Cell" is lackluster at best. Two popcorn boxes. —Tim O'Donnell

The Crew

Those were the days—that seems to be the underlying tone of "The Crew," a movie that has been described by many as a "Goodfellas" meets "Grumpy Old Men." "The Crew" is a predictable comedy of bumbling wise guys with a weak plot. It's a funny movie, but it may be more enjoyable for someone a little older. Two and a half popcorn boxes. —Michelle Habrych

Disney's The Kid

Disney's latest romp into fantasyland—"The Kid"—features Bruce Willis as his typical character: a crusty but benign someone named Russ who, through some unforeseen circumstance, rights his ways before its too late. Though he is very good at the image consulting he does, the relationships he has with the people around him, including strangers, are less than good. The arrival of young Rusty (Spencer Breslin) prompts Willis to believe he is having a breakdown. Willis then discovers that Rusty is himself at age 8. He begins trying to figure out why the boy has come to him, and what he needs to change. This film is fun and entertaining and should be seen by anyone who is in the 40-year-old range. Three and a half popcorn boxes. —Bob Warde

Nutty Professor II: The Klumps

As with most sequels, the follow up to "The Nutty Professor" doesn't live up to the first film. Though Eddie Murphy does a fantastic job of portraying all five Klumps and Buddy Love, none of his personas has much to say that is worth hearing. The film is rated PG-13 indicating that the humor should bend toward the adult side of things, but a majority of the jokes reference bodily, bathroom functions—the type of humor preferred by fourth grade boys. That said, there are enough sight gags and jokes about anatomy and sex to make that same group of fourth grade boys blush. "Nutty Professor II: The Klumps" is ruder, cruder and not nearly as funny as its 1996 smash hit predecessor. One and one half popcorn boxes. —Julie Murphy

The Replacements

"The Replacements" is good fun for those eagerly awaiting the start of the football season. Coach Jimmy McGinty (Gene Hackman) goes the unconventional route to fill in striking players' positions and chooses unknowns to make up his team. This rag-tag bunch of guys makes for a fun couple of hours to watch. Three and a half popcorn boxes. —Michelle Habrych

ANSWERS

Aries - March 21/April 20

It's going to be difficult for you, Aries, but you need to keep your opinions to yourself when it comes to a business meeting late in the week. Speaking your mind only will get you into hot water with the higher-ups. So, just keep quiet. A close friend needs a shoulder to cry on. Be there for him or her.

Taurus - April 21/May 21

Don't let a friend's mistake upset you on Monday. The error doesn't cause you any problems, and this person knows how to deal with the situation. So, just let it go. That special someone turns to you for advice. Be honest, and try to help him or her make the right decision. Your efforts will be appreciated. Leo plays a key role.

Gemini - May 22/June 21

You're on cloud nine this week, Gemini. You don't have a lot of responsibilities, and no one is expecting anything from you. So, enjoy yourself, and splurge a little. Don't let this opportunity slip away, because things are going to get hectic very soon. Libra is involved on Wednesday.

Cancer - June 22/July 22

Try not to let your conscience get the best of you when you get angry at a loved one. This person understands how you feel and isn't hurt by what you say. So, don't beat yourself up about it. Just let it go. An acquaintance reveals his or her true feelings for you. Let him or her down gently.

Leo - July 23/August 23

You meet someone interesting early in the week, Leo. Get to know this person better, because he or she certainly can help your career. Just be yourself, and you're sure to make a good impression. A loved one invites you out late in the week. Say yes, because it's sure to be a good time.

Virgo - Aug 24/Sept 22

Don't be late for an important financial meeting on Wednesday, Virgo. If you are, you'll miss out on a potentially lucrative opportunity. This could be the way to increase that bank account. A close friend needs your advice about a personal matter. Listen to what he or she has to say, and be honest. Your opinion will be taken seriously.

Libra - Sept 23/Oct 23

You can't put off an important decision any longer, Libra. You have to make a choice. Look at all of the pros and cons, and do what you think is best. Turn to a loved one for advice if you need it. He or she won't steer you in the wrong direction.

Scorpio - Oct 24/Nov 22

Don't let your ego get the best of you when meeting with a business associate early in the week, Scorpio. Getting cocky only will make you look bad. So, try to be modest. That special someone needs your help with a family matter. Do what you can for him or her.

Sagittarius - Nov 23/Dec 21

Keep your temper under control when an acquaintance purposely tries to upset you on Tuesday. He or she wants to make you look bad in front of others. Don't let that happen. The person whom you've been seeing asks you an important question. Be honest — even if what you have to say won't be appreciated.

Capricorn - Dec 22/Jan 20

Don't be shy when a loved one introduces you to an interesting person early in the week. Try to make a good impression, because this could be the one for you. Don't be nervous; your feelings will be reciprocated. A close friend needs your help with a personal matter. Do what you can for him or her.

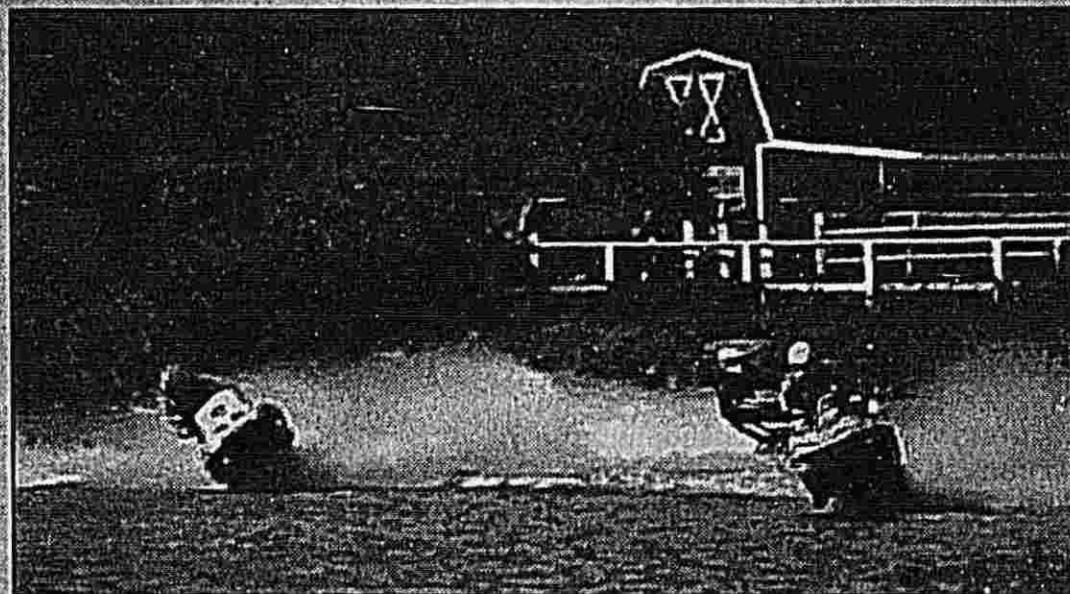

Aquarius - Jan 21/Feb 18

Try not to overanalyze an offer of help from an acquaintance. This person doesn't have an ulterior motive; he or she just wants to be there for you. Accept the assistance. Not only will you make a lot of progress, but you'll also gain a new friend. Cancer plays an important role.

Pisces - Feb 19/March 20

While you want to help a friend who gets into trouble on Thursday, don't. Getting involved only will cause you a lot of grief. This person gets into the mess on his or her own; he or she will have to get out of it the same way. Don't feel guilty about not helping.
